WILSON SEEKING TO AVERT STRIKE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 14.—Pressure to prevent the threatened nation-wide railroad strike commencing, as threatened, on next Saturday night if the conferences planned for tomorrow in New York are unsuccessful, already is being exerted by President Wilson. Officials privately admit that they are extremely apprehensive over the outlook. The heads of the railroad brotherhoods say that the controversy is back where it originally stood when congress enacted the Adamson eight hour law. The railroads can either grant the demands of the men, they say, or the strike will come. There will be no further compromise, they say.

Railroad officials who have been in touch with the White House and the department of labor say that the railroads will not meet the demands of the men pending a decision by the supreme court of the United States on the constitutionality of the Adamson law. It is agreed here that the delay in reaching a decision on this law indicates that the court is divided on almost equal lines. A five to four decision either way would be in no way surprising although the majority of attorneys and officials here who have been watching the situation say that it likely will be in favor of the constitutionality of the law. The decision may come down next Monday, but, of course, it is impossible to get definite information about it.

Meanwhile it appeared today that the strike would be in progress by that time. One side or the other will have to back down to prevent it. And although the president will appeal to the brotherhood chiefs and to the railroad executives to meet the situation in a "patriotic way" officials are none too optimistic that this can be done. At the conference tomorrow the brotherhood chiefs will announce that 99 per cent of their membership is aligned behind their demands and will also say they have no authority whatever to modify a single word in the demand. This will place the responsibility of action squarely before the railroad chiefs.

Judge William L. Chambers, member of the United States board of mediation and conciliation, who took a prominent part in the negotiations last summer and fall, which resulted in the passage of the Adamson eight hour law, today declared that he does not believe the railroad men will call a strike before the supreme court acts. Judge Chambers has been keeping in close touch with labor leaders, the railroad operators and the White House and is familiar with the entire situation.

FAVORITISM IS CHARGED.
Privileged Classes Scored by German Newspaper Writer.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, March 14.—A savage, sarcastic attack on the government's food distribution was launched today by Dr. Theodor Wolff in the Berliner Tageblatt. Dr. Wolff particularly scored the "privileged classes" which, he asserted, are obtaining all the food they want while the general public is subsisting on the meagre rations allotted by the government.

"One could eat the daily turnip with more appetite if convinced that he did not smell other culinary pleasures in certain places," wrote Dr. Wolff. "But when we hear everybody returning from the favored little towns tell of the eggs they discovered in nests out there and the butter that is shining on huge slices of bread, it is then that turnips fail to inspire us with enthusiasm."

The political leaders of what is called the Junker class make an extraordinary mistake if they show inability to understand the seriousness of the situation—we can see disease approaching the nation. The times are ripe for fearless innovations."

Wire Pulling for Auto Stock.
S. Israel of 37 North Front street has evidently gained a reputation in New York for "wire pulling" in connection with the telephone company. He is reported to have long distance telephone calls impersonating him to buy stock in a New York company with offices in New York. The last call said that the company is considering removal to Kingston with its plant. That account for Mr. Israel's putting the word "Hello" on the first syllable when he says "Hello" over the telephone these days.

"On to Bagdad."
The recent capture of the "City of the Arabian Nights" will add interest to the illustrated lecture Dr. Putnam Cady is to give shortly after Easter at the First Presbyterian Church on Elmwood street. The subject will be "From the Bosphorus to Bagdad." The rich valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates will be illustrated and it will be shown why the nations involved in the present war are endeavoring to secure this region.

Unoccupied House Burned.
A report of the fire which destroyed a tenement house on the Boulevard Monday night, and said that the house was occupied by Ellen Dave and family, was incorrect. The house was unoccupied, according to the owner, Joseph Bower, and neighbors who arrived at the scene had expressed the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin.

AMERICAN STEAMER SUNK BY U-BOAT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—The 1,833 ton American Star Line steamer Algonquin, flying the Stars and Stripes, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine March 12. No lives were lost. Captain Norberg, the vessel's commander, was a naturalized American citizen. There were nine other Americans in the vessel's crew of 24. The following cable was received here today at the offices of the American Star Line from Captain Norberg: "U-boat sunk Algonquin March 12. All saved."

The cable was sent from Penzance, where the crew is supposed to have landed. Dispatches reaching New York from London stated that the vessel was sunk without warning. The American Star Line had received no confirmation of this report.

The Algonquin was a steel screw, 3-masted ship built in 1888. She was originally owned by the Canadian Steamship Company and was sold by them to the American Star Line. She sailed from New York February 29 for London with a cargo of provisions.

NOTHING DOING ON ANY MODIFICATION

U. S. Not Negotiating Further With Germany as to Reported Changes in U-Boat Methods—Sailings of American Liners to be Kept Secret.

(By J. E. Nevin.)
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 14.—The United States is not a party to any negotiations with Germany to change her U-boat methods. This was emphasized again and again today in official quarters following reports from Scandinavian points that Germany was considering modifications of her blockade program to meet the wishes of this government.

The last word so far as the United States is concerned was uttered when Count von Bernstorff was dismissed. Unless Germany of her own volition restores her methods of warfare to limits permitted by international law there will be no change whatever in the "armed neutrality" policy ordered into effect by President Wilson.

Sinking of the Belgian relief vessel Lars Fastenae in a most brutal manner while the relief flags were flying is accepted here as indicating what the fate of American liners will be if they encounter submarines and are unable to use their guns in their own defense. The Storsadt and the Lars Fastenae were attacked and destroyed without warning and officials here say that as a result of this culmination of the long series of attacks on the relief work by Germany it is likely that an order recalling all Americans now engaged in that work in Belgium may be expected.

Word that an armed American liner has cleared for Liverpool probably will not be made public until that vessel is either through the danger zone or has been attacked. Four of the vessels of the American line have their "armed guard" on board. The guard, commanded by naval officers, have instructions what to do in case of emergency. In order to prevent if possible German submarine commanders securing information as to these vessels all information as to sailing is withheld. The first of these liners has booked as passengers a number of American officials returning to their posts abroad headed by Hugh Gibson, first secretary of the embassy in London, who carries with him important dispatches to Ambassadors Page and Sharp.

Reports that German submarines of the largest type are waiting in ambush to attack all American shipping, including coastwise, now are under investigation by the navy department. These craft were reported to be hidden in the Caribbean. No matter what the outcome of the search, no official report of what was accomplished will be made public at this time.

Ambassador Gerard and his party were expected to reach this city this afternoon. It was stated that arrangements will be made at once for the ambassador to report to the president—possibly tomorrow—and then to make another report to Secretary of State Lansing.

First Aid Classes Start.
On Tuesday three First Aid Red Cross classes were started, one meeting at the Kingston City Library in the morning at 10 o'clock, another in the afternoon at 2 o'clock and the third in the evening at 7:30 o'clock. All of these classes are now full and there was much enthusiasm shown in the work. Another class is being formed and while a few members are already enrolled, there are not enough to really form a class. So any other women who desire to take up this work, should at once send their names to Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, secretary of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross.

COURT OF APPEALS UPHOLDS SURROGATE

Reverses Appellate Division and Sustains Surrogate Gill's Decision That Ernest J. Linson Does Not Share in Brother's Estate.

The court of appeals at Albany on Tuesday handed down a decision holding that Ernest J. Linson is not entitled to share in his father's estate. In rendering this decision, the court upheld the decision of Surrogate Gill, which had been reversed by the appellate division of the supreme court, which had stood three in favor of holding that Ernest was entitled to a share in his father's estate, to two in favor of the contention that Senator Linson did not intend Ernest to receive anything.

Senator Linson by his will made provision for his sons, Harold M. Linson, Kenneth K. Linson and John J. Linson; for his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ernest J. Linson, and for her child, Paul Linson. He did not make any provision for Ernest. Under the will practically the entire estate is to remain in trust until Paul Linson becomes 21 years of age. In the meantime, the income is to be divided under certain terms for the benefit of the three sons mentioned and the grandson, Paul.

Harold M. Linson, one of Senator Linson's sons, died some time ago, and after his death Ernest contended that he became entitled to a share of the income, the will having provided that in case of the death of one of the children, the remaining estate should be enjoyed by his surviving brothers and Ernest's son, Paul.

On Ernest's behalf it was contended that if Senator Linson had intended to deprive Ernest from any share in the estate, his long experience as a lawyer, particularly his experience in drawing wills, would have caused him to state explicitly that Ernest was to be cut off entirely. In the absence of such specific directions, it was urged, Ernest was entitled to share in the estate on the death of Harold.

F. J. R. Clarke, the executor and trustee under the will, and Everett Fowler, as special guardian for Paul Linson, contested Ernest's claim to a share in the estate, and the matter was heard by Surrogate Gill. Mr. Clarke being represented by Howard Chipp and Ernest being represented by Frank W. Brooks.

Surrogate Gill held that Ernest was not entitled to any share in the estate, but did not write any opinion. Ernest appealed from the surrogate's decree to the appellate division, where two opinions were written. The majority opinion of the court, written by Judge Howard and concurred in by two of the other members of the court, held that Ernest was entitled to share in his father's estate through Harold's death. The dissenting opinion, written by Judge Cochrane, and concurred in by one of the judges, was in favor of sustaining the decision of the surrogate.

Executive Clarke and Special Guardian Fowler thereupon appealed to the court of appeals, where the case was argued some time ago. The decision of that court on Tuesday was without opinion, the case being decided on the opinion written by Judge Cochrane in the appellate division. Under this decision Ernest gets nothing.

Von Bernstorff in Berlin.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, March 14.—Count von Bernstorff, who arrived in Berlin last night with his official party, is expected to hold a conference with Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Secretary Zimmermann today. Following this conference it is believed that the statement which former ambassador to the United States has prepared regarding Secretary Zimmermann's note to Mexico, will be made public.

RAILROADS AWAIT COURT DECISION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—Railway executives here today for the conference tomorrow with the four brotherhood chiefs are not prepared to meet the demands of the brotherhoods for an immediate eight hour working day. Every indication now is that tomorrow's conference will only result in the forcing of the hand of the brotherhoods, unless they have a counter proposal to make to the executives.

Railroad officials are still staunch in their contention that they can take no action until the supreme court has ruled on the Adamson eight hour law. Although the storm clouds are thick today railroad executives are showing little or no concern. They state they are making no preparations for a strike, but it is known that the plans made to cope with the threatened strike last September have never been discarded. At that time shop employees and clerks were lined up to man the trains and they still stand ready to do that work.

Defection in the ranks of the employees is largely relied upon by the executives to break the force of the proposed strike. According to the railroad officials, the percentage of employees who will refuse to answer the strike call is very large. The statement of the executives that the strike action by the brotherhoods has been a failure from the standpoint of the men has caused considerable dissatisfaction. If the strike comes, with full effectiveness, then the railway heads will look to President Wilson for aid. They will expect President Wilson to take drastic action in view of the present rush of preparedness and will welcome any move from the White House.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, who has been named as head of the national defense council by President Wilson, is looked upon as the man who will take charge of the situation in event the administration acts. Eastern chairmen of the brotherhoods are meeting here today. This meeting is similar to those held in Chicago, Washington and St. Louis yesterday when the chairmen were apprised of the action proposed by the brotherhoods. Railway executives are gathering for the conference tomorrow but will hold no formal meetings today.

Raider in Indian Ocean.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Tokyo, March 14.—The German commerce raider now known to be operating in the Indian Ocean, is believed in Japanese naval circles to be one of the vessels which caused such havoc among shipping in South American waters. The raider is believed to have sunk two British and one Japanese steamers near Colombo. British and Japanese warships were searching the seas for her today.

Catskill Water April 1.
It is expected the new Catskill water system will be in full use by April 1, according to the annual report of Commissioner William Williams. New York will be served for the first time by a system arranged for the city as a whole. Thereafter the city will cease to pump any water from the ground in Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond.

Orange Co. Bar History.
The Orange County Bar Association, at a meeting in Goshen Tuesday, voted to accept an offer made some time ago by ex-District Attorney Walter C. Anthony of this city to write a history of the older members of the Orange County Bar, to be published by the association.

Engagement Announced.
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Birdsall of Plattekill announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Irene, to Samuel Andrews, of Walden.

POPE PREPARING IMPORTANT MESSAGE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rome, March 14.—The belief persists in circles close to the Vatican that Pope Benedict is preparing a new and important message on international affairs. No hint as to its probable tenor can be obtained. It is believed that the message will be included in the allocution which the Pope will send to the Consistory on March 22.

In the past few weeks the Pope has held long conversations with the two English cardinals, Gasquet and Bourne; with Billot, a French cardinal, with Frick, a German cardinal, and with Father Dominic Reuter, ex-general of the Capuchin Order.

ARTIST PROUD OF HIS AMERICANISM

Francis Macmillen, Who Will be Heard at High School Concert Tonight, is a Native of Buckeye State—Gained Laurels in Europe.

Francis Macmillen, the famous young violinist whose concert at the high school auditorium this evening will bring the Dodge concert series to a close is now on his fifth American tour. No other American violinist has met with half the acclaim that has been showered on him. Nature has given him a left hand which, by reason of its peculiar form, is said to be better adapted to playing the violin than that of any other great violinist.

The care and attention which Macmillen gives to his $15,000 Stradivarius violin rivals that accorded to a thoroughbred race horse. Daily it is rubbed down and polished, caressed and handled, and at the close of recital is subjected to every process known to the artist which will preserve its beauty.

Macmillen is proud of his Americanism and never overlooks an opportunity to make the fact known. Most of all he loves his native state, Ohio. In all his travels abroad he fails to make mention of the fact to the interviewer that he was born at Marietta, Ohio, and that the few boyhood days he had time to enjoy, as he has been a life of work, were spent there and in his second home, Springfield, Ohio.

Since those days, Macmillen, aside from five American tours consisting in the aggregate of about four hundred concerts, has been heard in nearly every country in Europe, where he has toured and co-toured, always with the same great success that greeted his London debut, when he was fresh from his student days and final triumph at the Brussels Conservatoire. He has played as soloist with nearly every important orchestra in Europe, and without exception, in this country, he has been the star attraction, not once but several times, with every great orchestral society.

To Equip This Depot Co.
Uniforms and arms for the Poughkeepsie Provisional Company are to be secured within the next month by a campaign which was mapped out at the business meeting of the company held Tuesday evening following the regular weekly drill. The regulation army uniform will be purchased while it is planned to secure Krag rifles for the volunteers.

Beacon Newspaper Sold.
The Fishkill Standard of Beacon, has been purchased by William Fulton, a former employee of the Newburgh News. Charles E. Spaight is the retiring editor and publisher.

BAUPAUME'S FALL MATTER OF HOURS

British Expect to be in Possession of Shell-Wrecked City by Nightfall—Crisis Expected Soon on Western Front is Belief in London.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, March 14.—Shell wrecked Bapaume, one of the main objectives of the present British advance on the western front, probably will be in English hands by nightfall. Dispatches from the front today told of steady British progress. The Germans are slowly falling back, covering their retreat as best they can with heavy salvos of artillery fire.

The ease with which the British encompassed Loupart Wood has convinced British strategists that the fall of the much-contested fortifications is only a matter of hours. Loupart Wood is a dominating position, giving a view over a wide expanse of surrounding territory. The fall of Bapaume, one of the main objectives of the present British advance on the western front, probably will be in English hands by nightfall. Dispatches from the front today told of steady British progress. The Germans are slowly falling back, covering their retreat as best they can with heavy salvos of artillery fire.

Belief that the German movements on the western front are being directed by von Hindenburg himself was strengthened today by an article from the pen of Major Morant, the Berliner Tageblatt's noted military critic. The famous retiring movement which von Hindenburg worked so successfully against the Russians on the eastern front was recalled. The German strategist retired fighting, just as the Germans now are doing, and when the line straightened out with a snap, the Germans suddenly abandoned their retirement and swept forward carrying the Russians with them.

Belief is unanimous among English officers that affairs will soon reach a crisis on the western front. A number of German officers captured in the drive have been serving only lately in Turkey, indicating that the German strategists are concentrating for highly important action in northern France.

MUST NOT INSULT WOMEN ON STREET

Recorder Lang Issues Warning to Street Loafers that Jail Sentences will be Passed Out-First Complaint in Year Made by Girl.

That the city streets are to be kept safe for women at all hours was the determination of Recorder Lang when the first complaint of a girl being insulted on the city street in a year was lodged with him this morning by a young girl residing downtown who complained that several young loafers had passed insulting remarks and called her "Footsie." She identified one of the young men and he appeared in recorder's court this morning to answer to the complaint.

The young girl said she did not wish to punish anyone but she did not like to have insulting remarks made when she happened to pass any young men on the street. The young man who had been notified to appear in court is 15 years old and when the court asked him if he would care to spend some time in jail commenced to cry bitterly. Recorder Lang informed him that as the young woman did not care to have him punished, that he would allow him to go this time, but he must remember in the future to be more careful of his conduct.

The young man said that he was out with some companions and that they were the ones who had made the remarks. He said that in the future he would leave these companions alone. Recorder Lang made it plain that hereafter when a complaint was made that a jail sentence would be inflicted. There are a number of young loafers who make it a habit of passing insulting remarks to women passing them on the sidewalk. That this will not be tolerated the court made plain.

Church of the Holy Spirit.
In the Church of the Holy Spirit, Wurts street, the Rev. John James Bott, rector, there will be Wednesday evening service at 7:30; special preacher, the Rev. H. P. Hobson, rector of St. John's Memorial Church, Ellenville. Also special music by Arthur Rifenbary. Solo, "Lead Kindly Light."

Alderman on Grand Jury.
Alderman Velle M. Collins, chairman of the public property and auditing committee of the Poughkeepsie common council, has been drawn as a member of the grand jury which will next month investigate certain alleged violations of the law by city officials.

GERMANS REPULSE ALLIED ATTACKS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, via Sayville wireless, March 14.—Everywhere along the western front British and French attacks have been repulsed, the war office announced today.

British troops have assaulted German positions at three points along the battle line in the last 24 hours, the official statement asserted, but each time at a heavy cost in lives. A French attack near St. Mihiel also failed.

OBREGON RESIGNS MINISTRY OF WAR

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Mexico City, Mex., March 14.—General Alvaro Obregon, the "strong man" in the Carranza government, has resigned as minister of war in the cabinet and shortly will retire to private life. General Obregon has notified President Carranza of his intention but it was not known today whether his resignation would be accepted.

General Obregon's retirement will be a severe handicap to Carranza's efforts to destroy the marauding bands which still infest the republic. The one-armed leader was the ablest military man in Mexico, and the only leader who ever soundly thrashed Pancho Villa.

FORT HAMILTON NOT ATTACKED

Police Protection Withdrawn This Morning After Demonstration of Preparedness—Plot Rumors Came From Nowhere.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—Picket lines of 300 police, which were hastily thrown about Fort Hamilton in the early hours of the morning on reports that German reservists were about to blow up the fortifications, were withdrawn shortly after 8 o'clock today. Police boats, however, were kept patrolling the Narrows against possible attack.

The reports came apparently from nowhere. But they resulted in unprecedented activity among the police and a complete demonstration of police preparedness. Commissioner Woods dispatched 300 patrolmen to the fort at once in patrol cars and trolleys. At the same time three police boats armed with rapid fire, were dispatched to the Narrows. Searchlights played about the fort and surrounding waters all night, and every person who approached was challenged.

It was reported today that a German plot had actually been discovered and frustrated. The police were reticent.

Police Commissioner Arthur Woods indicated today that he believes a hoax may have been perpetrated on the police.

"I will make no comment now," he said. "But I am going to make a thorough investigation of the whole matter."

STOCK MARKET OPENS STRONG

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—After the opening sales the stock market developed pronounced strength today, and gains ranging from fractions to over two points were recorded. The news of the sinking of the American steamer Algonquin caused some selling at the opening. Steel Common opened at 110 1/2 to 110 3/4, against 110 1/2 at the close yesterday, but quickly rose 3 1/2 points to 124 1/2, and International paper, which opened down 3/4 at 45 1/2, rose to 45 1/2. Tin Copper, after declining 1/4 to 111 1/4, rose to 112 1/2. There was vigorous buying of Marine Pfd., which rose 1/2 point to 76 and the common, after opening down 1/4, rose to 27 1/2. American Sugar Refining rose 1/4 to 113 1/2 and Cuba Cane Sugar 1 1/2 to 43 1/2. Western Union rose 1/4 to 36 1/2. The railway issues were traded in on a small scale and showed little change.

William F. Sheehan Dead.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—William F. Sheehan, former lieutenant governor of New York and a leading lawyer, died at his home here today after a year's illness. It was said today he never fully recovered from the shock of the sudden death of his brother, John C. Sheehan, former Tammany leader, more than a year ago. In 1911 he was a candidate for United States senator, but the legislature deadlocked over the nomination and James O'Gorman was chosen.

COURT OF APPEALS UPHOLDS SURROGATE

Reverses Appellate Division and Sustains Surrogate's Decision That Ernest J. Linson Does Not Share in Brother's Estate.

The court of appeals at Albany on Tuesday handed down a decision holding that Ernest J. Linson is not entitled to share in his father's estate.

In rendering this decision, the court upheld the decision of Surrogate Gill, which had been reversed by the appellate division of the supreme court, which had stood three in favor of holding that Ernest was entitled to a share in his father's estate.

Although the storm clouds which today railroad executives are still staunch in their contention that they can take no action until the supreme court has ruled on the Adamson eight hour law.

On Ernest's behalf it was contended that if Senator Linson had intended to deprive Ernest from any share in the estate, his long experience as a lawyer, particularly his experience in drawing wills, would have caused him to state explicitly that Ernest was to be cut off entirely.

F. J. R. Clarke, the executor and trustee under the will, and Everett Fowler, as special guardian for Paul Linson, contested Ernest's claim to a share in the estate, and the matter was heard by Surrogate Gill. Mr. Clarke being represented by Howard Chipp and Ernest being represented by Frank W. Brooks.

Surrogate Gill held that Ernest was not entitled to any share in the estate, but did not write any opinion. Ernest appealed, from the surrogate's decree to the appellate division, where two opinions were written. The majority opinion of the court, written by Judge Howard and concurred in by two of the other members of the court, held that Ernest was entitled to share in his father's estate through Harold's death.

The dissenting opinion, written by Judge Cochrane, and concurred in by one of the judges, was in favor of sustaining the decision of the surrogate.

RAILROADS AWAIT COURT DECISION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 14.—Railroad executives here today for the conference tomorrow with the four brotherhood chiefs are not prepared to meet the demands of the brotherhoods for an immediate eight hour working day. Every indication now is that tomorrow's conference will only result in the forcing of the hand of the brotherhoods, unless they have a counter proposal to make to the executives. Railroad officials are still staunch in their contention that they can take no action until the supreme court has ruled on the Adamson eight hour law.

POPE PREPARING IMPORTANT MESSAGE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, March 14.—The belief persists in circles close to the Vatican that Pope Benedict is preparing a new and important message on international affairs. No hint as to its probable tenor can be obtained. It is believed that the message will be included in the allocution which the Pope will send to the Consistory on March 22.

In the past few weeks the Pope has held long conversations with the two English cardinals, Gasquet and Bourne; with Billot, a French cardinal; with Feiler, a German cardinal; and with Father Bonvicini, ex-general of the Capuchin Order.

ARTIST PROUD OF HIS AMERICANISM

Francis Macmillen, Who Will be Heard at High School Concert Tonight, is a Native of Buckeye State—Gained Laurels in Europe.

Francis Macmillen, the famous young violinist whose concert at the high school auditorium this evening will bring the Dodge concert series to a close, is now on his fifth American tour. No other American violinist has met with half the acclaim that has been showered on him. Nature has given him a left hand which, by reason of its peculiar form, is said to be better adapted to playing the violin than that of any other great violinist.

The care and attention which Macmillen gives to his $15,000 Stradivarius violin rivals that accorded to a thoroughbred race horse. Daily it is rubbed down and polished, caressed and handled, and at the close of recital is subjected to every process known to the artist which will preserve its beauty.

Macmillen is proud of his Americanism and never overlooks an opportunity to make the fact known. Most of all he loves his native state, Ohio. In all his travels abroad he fails to make mention of the fact that the interviewer that he was born at Marietta, Ohio, and that the few boyhood days he had time to enjoy, as his has been a life of work, were spent there and in his second home, Springfield, Ohio.

Since those days, Macmillen, aside from five American tours consisting in the aggregate of about four hundred concerts, has been heard in nearly every country in Europe, where he has toured and re-toured, always with the same great success that greeted his London debut, when he was fresh from his student days and final triumph, at the Brussels Conservatoire. He has played as soloist with nearly every important orchestra in Europe, and without exception in this country, he has been the star attraction, not once but several times, with every great symphonic society.

To Equip This Depot Co. Uniforms and arms for the Poughkeepsie Provisional Company are to be secured within the next month by a campaign which was mapped out at the business meeting of the company held Tuesday evening following the regular weekly drill. The regulation army uniform will be purchased while it is planned to secure Krag rifles for the volunteers.

BAUPAUME'S FALL MATTER OF HOURS

British Expect to be in Possession of Shell-Wrecked City by Nightfall—Crisis Expected Soon on Western Front is Belief in London.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, March 14.—Shell wrecked Baupau, one of the main objectives of the present British advance on the western front, probably will be in English hands by nightfall. Dispatches from the front today told of steady British progress. The Germans are slowly falling back, covering their retreat as best they can with heavy salvos of artillery fire.

The ease with which the British encompassed Loupat Wood has convinced British strategists that the fall of the much-contested fortifications is only a matter of hours. Loupat Wood is a dominating position, giving a view over a wide expanse of surrounding territory. The fall of this made the wood untenable, and the Germans withdrew under terrific artillery fire from British guns before the defensive works of Baupau were entirely destroyed.

Late dispatches reaching London report that the Germans still hanging on to Bauey and Achol to the north, on the northwestern end of the Deseris-Loupat line. Further to the south, however their retreat has carried them actually behind the Baupau line—along the line of Loupat Wood, Achol to Grand and Bivilliers.

Belief that the German movements on the western front are being directed by von Hindenburg himself was strengthened today by an article from the pen of Major Morant, the Berliner Tageblatt's noted military critic. The famous retiring movement which von Hindenburg worked so successfully against the Russians on the eastern front was recalled. The German strategist retired fighting, just as the Germans now are doing, and when the line straightened out with a snap, the Germans suddenly abandoned their retirement and swept forward, carrying the Russians with them.

Belief is unanimous among English officers that affairs will soon reach a crisis on the western front. A number of German officers captured in the drive have been serving only lately in Turkey, indicating that the German strategists are concentrating for highly important action in northern France.

MUST NOT INSULT WOMEN ON STREET

Recorder Lang Issues Warning to Street Loafers that Jail Sentences will be Passed Out-First Complaint in Year Made by Girl.

That the city streets are to be kept safe for women at all hours was the determination of Recorder Lang when the first complaint of a girl being insulted on the city street in a year was lodged with him this morning by a young girl residing downtown who complained that several young loafers had passed insulting remarks and called her "Foolish." She identified one of the young men and he appeared in recorder's this morning to answer to the complaint.

The young girl said she did not wish to punish anyone but she did not like to have insulting remarks made when she happened to pass any young men on the street.

The young man who had been notified to appear in court is 15 years old and when the court asked him if he would care to spend some time in jail commenced to cry bitterly. Recorder Lang informed him that as the young woman did not care to have him punished that he would allow him to go this time but he must remember in the future to be more careful of his conduct.

The young man said that he was out with some companions and that they were the ones who had made the remarks. He said that in the future he would leave these companions alone.

Recorder Lang made it plain that hereafter when a complaint was filed that a jail sentence would be inflicted. There are a number of young loafers who make it a habit of passing insulting remarks to women passing them on the sidewalk. That this will not be tolerated the court made plain.

GERMANS REPULSE ALLIED ATTACKS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sarville wireless, March 14.—Everywhere along the western front British and French attacks have been repulsed, the war office announced today.

British troops have assaulted German positions at three points along the battle line in the last 24 hours, the official statement asserted, but each time at a heavy cost in lives. A French attack near St. Mihiel also failed.

OBREGON RESIGNS MINISTRY OF WAR

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Mexico City, Mex., March 14.—General Alvaro Obregon, the "strong man" in the Carranza government, has resigned as minister of war in the cabinet and shortly will retire to private life. General Obregon has notified President Carranza of his intention but it was not known today whether his resignation would be accepted.

General Obregon's retirement will be a severe handicap to Carranza's efforts to destroy the marauding bands which still infest the republic. The one-armed leader was the ablest military man in Mexico, and the only leader who, over soundly thrashed Pascual Villa.

FORT HAMILTON NOT ATTACKED

Police Protection Withdrawn This Morning After Demonstration of Preparedness—Plot Rumors Came From Nowhere.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—Pickets lines of 300 police, which were hastily thrown about Fort Hamilton in the early hours of the morning on reports that German reservists were about to blow up the fortifications, were withdrawn shortly after 3 o'clock today. Police units, however, were kept patrolling the Narrows against possible attack.

The reports came apparently from nowhere. But they resulted in unprecedented activity among the police and a complete demonstration of police preparedness. Commissioner Woods dispatched 300 patrolmen to the fort at once in patrols and trolleys. At the same time three police boats armed with rapid fire, were dispatched to the Narrows. Searchlights played about the fort and surrounding waters all night, and every person who approached was challenged.

It was reported today that a German plot had actually been discovered and frustrated. The police were reticent.

Police Commissioner Arthur Woods indicated today that he believes a hoax may have been perpetrated on the police.

"I will make no comment now," he said, "But I am going to make a thorough investigation of the whole matter."

STOCK MARKET OPENS STRONG

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 14.—After the opening sales the stock market developed pronounced strength today, and gains ranging from fractions to over two points were recorded. The news of the sinking of the American steamer Algonquin caused some selling at the opening. Steel Common opened at 110 1/2 to 110 1/4, against 110 3/4 at the close yesterday, but quickly rose to 111. Industrial Algonquin rose 3 1/2 points to 124 1/2, and international paper, which opened down 1/2 at 43 1/2, rose to 45. Utah Copper, after declining 1/4 to 11 1/4, rose to 11 3/4. There was vigorous buying of Marine Petroleum, which rose a point to 76 and the common, after opening down 1/2, rose to 27 1/2. American Sugar Refining rose 1/2 to 112 1/2. Cuba Cane Sugar 1 1/2 to 43 1/2. Western Union rose 1/2 to 95 1/2. The railway issues were traded in on a small scale and showed little change.

William F. Sheehan Dead. By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 14.—William F. Sheehan, former lieutenant governor of New York and a leading lawyer, died at his home here today after a year's illness. It was said today he never fully recovered from the shock of the sudden death of his brother, John C. Sheehan, former Tammany leader, more than a year ago. In 1911 he was a candidate for United States senator but the legislature deadlocked over the nomination and James O'Grady was chosen.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"What's the matter, don't you feel good?" asked the street corner politician of his friend.

"I am rather out of sorts," replied the friend.

"Spring fever that's the trouble," commented the politician.

"You'd have it too if you were married," replied the friend.

"How is that?" asked the politician.

"The wife just came home with a new lid, ten bucks," explained the friend.

"Funny thing about the women's hats," said the politician.

"What's that?" asked the friend.

"In February they wear straw hats and in August get back to felt again," explained the politician.

"That's nothing," said the friend gloomily, "no matter what the material it makes itself felt in the pocketbook."

"Talking about being married," said the politician after a pause, "I am reminded of the fate of a friend of ours."

"What about him?" asked the friend.

"It seems," explained the politician, "that he had accumulated about $150 and decided that was enough to get married on and he sought out the girl of his choice and they were married."

"Go on," said the friend.

"John left for the big city after the ceremony," continued the politician, "and spent just one night there, and the next morning the man awoke and found his bride missing."

"He was lucky," commented the friend.

"But his roll, or what was left of it, had disappeared at the same time," said the politician.

"That was not so fortunate," interrupted the friend.

"He was certainly up a tree and did not know what to do next," said the politician.

"What happened?" asked the friend.

"It's a wonder she left that," commented the friend.

"The only reason was," explained the politician, "was because it had accidentally got stuck in his tobacco pouch with his tobacco, and he found it when he started to fill his pipe."

"What would have happened if he had not been a smoker?" asked the friend.

"He would have had to become a submarine," said the politician.

"What do you mean?" asked the friend.

"Stolen a ride home under the trucks," explained the politician.

"Getting back to spring fever," said the politician, "I know it is here from your actions when I met you."

"Now is that?" asked the friend.

"Was not that a seed catalogue you were studying?" said the politician.

"It was at that," replied the friend.

"Why don't you go in for chickens this year instead of a garden?" asked the politician.

"Where did you get the idea of raising chickens," the friend wanted to know.

"I read somewhere," explained the politician, "that there was good money in raising chickens."

"Somebody was stringing you," commented the friend.

"No more fiction about it than a seed catalogue," retorted the politician.

"I have a good idea though," continued the politician thoughtfully.

"What is it?" asked the friend.

"The main reason why you don't get so many eggs in the winter," explained the politician, "is because the days are shorter, and hens won't lay while it's dark."

"That sounds reasonable," commented the friend.

"Now my idea would be," explained the politician, "to separate the light and the dark colored chickens."

"Why?" asked the friend.

"It would seem to me," said the politician, "that on a dark day fowls with dark plumage make the coop even darker than usual, and consequently if you have any luck at all you will get only a few eggs."

"What's your idea?" asked the friend.

"To light the coop with electricity."

"No I have a better plan than that," said the politician, "I would take this stuff you use on matches and coat the plumage of my fowls with it."

"What for?" asked the friend.

"Then at night when it was dark," explained the politician, "the phos-phors on the chicken's feathers would commence to glow and the hens would think it was daylight and start in laying."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

There are so many things—best things—that can only come when youth is past that it may well happen to many of us to find ourselves happier and happier to the last—ELOT.

WINTER FRUITS.

At this season of the year when canned fruit is disappearing as well as the jams and jellies, we are forced to think about dried fruits.

In preparing dried fruit it is well to remember that it needs a good soaking to restore the moisture lost by drying. No amount of cooking will soften the fruit as soaking overnight will do. Dates and figs are so rich in sugar that they do not need soaking as a rule.

A most delicious marmalade may be made of the fresh orange, grapefruit, and lemon, using one of each sliced as fine as possible, discarding the seeds.

Cover the sliced fruit with three quarts of cold water and let it stand overnight, or better 24 hours. Then simmer for an hour and a half and again let stand overnight. The next day add five pounds of light brown sugar and cook slowly until the fruit is clear. Turn into glasses and cover as for ordinary jelly.

Spiced Prunes.—Soak a pound of large prunes overnight in water to cover. In the morning stew in the same water until soft, adding a two-inch stick of cinnamon, the grated rind of half a lemon, six cloves; while the fruit is still hot add a half a cupful each of vinegar and sugar. Chill before serving.

Prune and Apple Poly-Poly.—Roll out a rich pastry very thin, heap on it two cupfuls of finely chopped apples and a cupful of drained, stoned, and slightly chopped, stewed prunes. Roll up and place in a deep saucepan; cover with boiling water, a cupful of brown sugar and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Bake one hour and serve with whipped cream and the sauce in which it was cooked.

Cranberries are also delicious, spiced as one does other fruit. To three quarts of berries use three and a half pounds of brown sugar, two cupfuls of vinegar, a tablespoonful of allspice, a teaspoonful of cloves and a three-inch stick of cinnamon. The vinegar, if very acid, should be diluted. The spices may be removed before putting in the glasses if desired.

Mexican Tribe Tempered Copper.
The early Tarascans, a Mexican tribe, once possessed the art, now lost, of tempering copper. One of their legends is not far removed from the Bible story of Noah. According to them, Trepi, their Noah—escaped an all-devouring flood in a great boat laden with animals. Even the story of the dove is closely followed, for Trepi first sent a vulture and then a hummingbird, and so ascertained that dry land existed.

So Wrote von Bernstorff After Seven Days of Delay in Halifax Harbor—German Government Will Make Protest.

(By Karl H. von Wiegand.)
(Copyright, 1917, International News Service.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Via Sayville Wireless, March 14.—That the German government will file a protest to Washington through the Swiss legation when ex-Ambassador von Bernstorff makes his report on the manner in which the British authorities interpreted and carried out the diplomatic safe conduct guarantee given through Secretary Lansing and presumably guaranteed by the American government, is considered certain here.

Such a protest probably will be made even though nothing can actually be accomplished during the war. It will be based on the unnecessarily long detention at Halifax, bodily search of members of the party, excepting Count von Bernstorff, and the taking of the personal belongings of the party.

After the first seven days at Halifax with no prospect of getting away, I asked Count von Bernstorff for his autograph. He wrote in my album: "Diplomatic safe conduct sometimes is a scrap of paper."

Count von Bernstorff declined to say what the nature of his report to his government will be, or to make a public statement. He has said nothing since he left Halifax.

After the longest Atlantic voyage of any passenger ship during the war the ambassadorial party of 160 weary Germans, a large number of equally disgusted and yet thankful Americans, Danes, Norwegians, Swedes, seven Hollanders and a few Russians reached Christiania.

The voyage from New York occupied 25 days. After two days out from Halifax the Frederick rolled and tumbled in tumultuous seas, buffeted by the winds and snowstorms. All the ambassadorial party, however, were proof against Neptune and didn't miss a meal. Of the others many were seasick for days.

As we neared the edge of the war zone on Tuesday the lifeboats were swung out, water and food placed in them, a searchlight turned on the fog and everything made ready for emergency.

During the night several cruisers were heard asking by wireless if the Frederick had been located. The captain would not permit the Frederick wireless operator to answer the calls of the warships, or allow wireless messages to be sent out from the Frederick until long past the zeroes. Even then he did not permit newspaper men to send out anything about the stay at Halifax, saying he wasn't taking any chances that would give an excuse to be held up again.

The steamer was held at Halifax for eleven days. Bernstorff as well as the other passengers was held practically uncommunicative from the moment we left the New York dock. The first evening out New York newspaper men wanted to wireless about the departure. Captain Thomson refused to allow it, declaring he had promised not to declare the wireless to be used for public messages, especially newspaper dispatches. This promise, I gathered from him, was exacted by the British.

The Frederick was subjected to the most rigid search of any ship during the war—from stem to stern, from coal bunkers to the crow's nest. The passengers, many of them Americans, Norwegians, Danes, Swedes, were stripped alike with the Germans to their intense indignation. There was much futile talk about "violation of rights" and many serious, comical and pathetic outbursts of anger.

The obvious experience of the searchers was offset to some extent by the splendid courtesy of the officers from the cruiser Devonshire, which in turn was again marred by the lack of consideration and courtesy of the customs officials.

No "Dick Turpin" ever held up a stage coach with greater politeness than did Commander Harold Adir-Hall, a warm-hearted Irishman, held up the Frederick.

The severity of the search was nullified and rendered incomprehensible, so far as searching for contraband or concealed documents was concerned, by the mere perfunctory glances directed at hundreds of Germans and neutral trucks. They were hauled carelessly and indifferently out on to the dock, contrasting sharply with the severity aboard ship.

The Frederick was piloted into Edford Basin at Halifax on the night of the sixteenth, after lying outside some hours, waiting for the darkness, lest the Germans see some of the defenses.

A small army of 125 blue jackets under Adir-Hall and numerous customs inspectors boarded the Frederick and the commander announced that the vessel would be given a "war search" with no exceptions or exemptions but von Bernstorff himself, and only he would be exempt if he gave written assurance that he carried no documents.

Plan to Spend Money.
Dutchess county supervisors are holding a special meeting today to determine the roads upon which the $16,000 falling due to the county from the automobile license refund shall be expended. The Salt Point road is most favored.

A Thimble Party.
The ladies of the First Presbyterian Church will hold a thimble party at the home of Mrs. Cady, No. 195 Tremont avenue, on Friday afternoon. All ladies of the church and their friends are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Givens of 37 Jansen avenue will entertain a number of friends Thursday evening in honor of their recent marriage.

Miss Edith Tongue delightfully entertained at her home on President Place Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. John W. Mackey of Schenectady, N. Y.

Federation Executive Meeting.
All members of the executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs are reminded of the meeting to be held on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the president, Mrs. C. K. Moulton, on Elmwood street. Several matters will be presented to the general meeting will be considered on Thursday morning, making the session one of unusual importance.

Lovell Club.
The Lovell Club met with Mrs. T. D. Lewis this week. Following the roll call of current events, one of the most interesting round tables ever conducted in the club, took place. The leader was Mrs. Schoonmaker and the subject covered notable Scotch writers, "Barrie, Crockett, Stevenson, Maclaren and McDonald." Those who participated were Mrs. Van Leuven, Mrs. Devo, Mrs. Witter and Mrs. Bruyn. Another pleasing feature of the afternoon was a talk on "Stevenson," given by Miss Hallock. The club members were invited to the general Federation meeting to be held in the chapel of the First Dutch Church on Saturday afternoon of this week, and were also solicited regarding their patronage for the Crothers lecture, by a senior member of the high school. Next week the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Martin on Main street.

Lenten service will be held at the Spring Street German Lutheran Church this evening at 7:30. Subject of the sermon, "The Precious Blood."

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, March 14.—Saugerties appears to be suffering from a general business depression. Several of its manufacturing industries are running with reduced numbers of employees and the general conditions are far from favorable. High cost of living, scarcity of employment and landlords increasing rents make a serious problem for many of our residents.

Miss Lea Marie Pollem of Livingston street is spending a few days in New York city.

Dwight L. Van Duskirk, for many years in the employ of his brother, Clinton Van Duskirk, Liveryman and garage proprietor, has resigned and purchased the harness store of J. Oliver on Market street and the automobile and electrical supply business of W. M. Mills on Main street. The two concerns will be run under his management.

A miscellaneous shower was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. E. C. Styles on Main street, in honor of Miss Rachel Crump, whose approaching marriage to Ralph V. Hayes has been announced. Among the guests were Mrs. Bessie Johnson of Jersey City and Miss Henrietta Finger of New York city.

On Monday night chicken thieves entered the henary of Charles Salisbury on Elm street and removed him of six fowls.

Tuesday afternoon James Davis and two mechanics from Kennedy's garage, Kingston, while in Saugerties with a new Reo car stopped on West Bridge Street Hill, supposing the brakes would hold. All three got out of the car, when at once the car began to roll down the hill and striking an electric light pole, damaged it so that another machine towed it to Kingston.

W. M. Mills and family of Main street have rented the Abbott bungalow on the state road near the West Shore Railroad.

Miss Beatrice Keeney and Miss Charlotte Haley of Saugerties participate in the Van Wakenen Fashion Show exhibition at the Kingston Opera House this afternoon.

Remarkable Medical Treatment.
Mr. Kelly—"An' how are ye this mornin', Mistress Flynn? Is yer rheumatiz any better?" Mrs. Flynn—"Well, yis, I think it is. I thank ye kindly. The new doctor's treatment is doin' me a world 'n good, I believe. He advises me to take quenee ann eternally, and to rub anarchy on me jints. So I'm doin' it, an' I think it's helpin' me wonderfully."

Frankly Selfish.
We know one thoughtful grandmother who frankly admits that she spoils the baby at every possible opportunity, explaining in her philosophical way that she knows perfectly well she'll get the blame for it anyway and might as well have the fun of doing it. —Columbus (Ohio) Journal.

MARVELOUS HUNTERS.

Natives of Australia Are Wizards in the Art of Tracking.

In endurance and speed the Australian aborigine is not the equal of the American Indian, and his weapons of wood and poorly fashioned stones are effective only at short range, but as a hunter the native Australian is marvellously adjusted to his environment. His success lies in an intimate knowledge of the habits of animals on land, in the ground, in trees and under water, and his wonderfully developed powers of observation.

He decoys pelicans by imitating their cries, catches ducks by diving below them, locates an opossum in a tree by marks on the bark or by the flight of mosquitoes, finds snakes by observing the action of birds and follows a bee to its store of honey.

Any animal which leaves a track, however dim, in sand, on rock or in grass falls an easy prey to the black fellow. Children are taught to track lizards and snakes over bare rocks and to find their absent mother by following tracks too indistinct to serve as a guide for a European. When a white man is lost in the desert or a child strays from home the final resort is to secure a "black tracker."—National Geographic Magazine.

CARRIER PIGEONS.

Messages They Carry Are Packed in Small Gaseous Quills.

The general notion that all that has to be done in forwarding a dispatch by pigeons is to catch the bird, tie a letter to its leg and then liberate it is wrong, as the method of attaching the message is of great importance.

Prior to the siege of Paris the method of affixing the message to the bird had not received that attention which it demanded, and consequently many dispatches were lost in transit.

At first the message was merely rolled up tightly, waxed over to protect it from the weather and then attached to a feather in the bird's tail. But it was soon found that the twine which kept the message in place cut or damaged the quill, and therefore in order to prevent it from being pecked by the pigeon from being injured by wet the message was inserted in a small gaseous quill, two inches in length.

The quill was then pierced close to each end with a red-hot bodkin, so as not to split it, and in the holes waxed silk threads were inserted to affix it to the strongest tail feather. By attaching the message to this part of the bird's body its flight was not in any way interfered with.—Lone Scout.

FARMING AND LIVE STOCK

HANDLING GROWING PIGS.

Swine Need a Variety of Feeds, Especially in Cold Weather.

No one can make hogs profitable by feeding only corn and water, especially this year. Some do market hogs raised on that diet, but I have had experience for a lifetime and have tried the corn feeding alone and found it very unprofitable, writes an Indiana farmer in the American Agriculturist. One can fatten a hog on corn alone, but with no profit. By giving a variety of food from the time the pig is old enough to eat until it is marketed you have bone and muscle in proportion to the body weight.

A balanced growing ration which has the required amount of protein must be fed. It has been in the past the general belief among farmers that protein is protein, wherever it is found, and that its source could in no wise affect its value to the growing animal. Corn contains 10 per cent protein, but after all out of the 10 per cent protein that corn contains only 3 per cent is valuable to the growing pig. Therefore I have seen the improvements made by feeding swine material that was higher in protein.

Our routine of feeding growing shoters is to furnish a rye pasture during Admirers of the Duroc-Jersey breed of hogs claim that this type will make greater gains on less feed than other breeds. The Duroc-Jersey is of the hard type, is a quick maturer and ready to market at six months. The sows are prolific and will raise two litters a year. The sow shown is a Duroc-Jersey.

ing winter and use as slop feed one part rye, one part oats and one part corn, ground and thoroughly mixed. With this we use tankage or linseed meal. We also use shorts, middlings and dairy byproducts, which all promote the rapid growth and development of the growing hog. In summer hogs do not require much extra feed where good clover or alfalfa pasture is obtainable.

Charcoal and sufficient salt are both relished and necessary to the fat hog. We feed warm slop consisting of ground mixed feeds, shorts or middlings once daily until the hogs are marketed. I do not think hogs should be fed slop at night, for it has a tendency to make the hog fretful and restless during the night. When they leave their warm beds on cold mornings they are heated from fretting and in the cold air they become chilled and are liable to chronic ailments, which often prove serious. I have tried cooking the slop and find it to be a very profitable method during the winter when fed warm. It makes the food more nutritious, and hogs that are fed this cooked material regularly make rapid gains, both in flesh and growth. I have been more convinced every year I have cared for hogs that a clean feeding pen and dry, warm beds are all necessary to obtain profitable results.

Use Pure Bred Sires.
The pure bred sire is the best means of live stock improvement. Whether good or bad, he is half the herd and sometimes more. For this reason the selection of the sire demands equally as much attention as the entire group of females, and it is far more important to have a good sire, both in individuality and breeding, than to have one or two good females. If sacrifices must be made, let them occur in the selection of the females. Better still, let every one be a good one, both in breeding and individual excellence.—Kansas Farmer.

Hardening the Team.
Give the horses all the work possible from now on to fit them for plowing the hardest work they will be called upon to perform. Begin to feed them full rations and spend much time in cleaning to rid them of their winter coat of hair and dust.

STOCK NOTES.

- Clean, fresh water every day for the sheep flock is a hard and fast rule.
- Do not stuff the colt with coarse fodder. If you do you will make it dyspeptic and subject to colic in after years.
- Dishwater and such stuff should go down the drainpipe.
- Washing powders have no place in the ration for the pigs.
- No matter what a horse's gait, he should move easily. When buying, think of this.
- There will be loss with the pigs if they are not made comfortable.
- Don't feed timothy hay to sheep. Mixed hay or clover or alfalfa should be given to the flock.

Probably Not.

Doings of the Van Loons—Under the Circumstances it is difficult to be Joyous

THE question of the hour is: "Shall the privileges of the sober man be subordinated in a vain endeavor to reform the drunkard?"

We refer to present agitation of the saloon-liquor-license question. It is a subject that will not permit of narrow-mindedness or hypocrisy. A majority of the American liberty-loving people want pure beer like

Old Stock Lager

Ten per cent of the workmen in the larger cities have beer with their lunches. Life hasn't much cheer for them, and they find solace in a pint of beer. The men who do not care to frequent saloons keep beer in their homes. It is a national beverage from which only goodness is derived if sensibly used.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"What's the matter, don't you feel good?" asked the street corner politician of his friend.

"I am rather out of sorts," replied the friend.

"Spring fever that's the trouble," commented the politician.

"You'd have it too if you were married," replied the friend.

"How is that?" asked the politician.

"The wife just came home with a new bid, ten bucks," explained the friend.

"Funny thing about the women's hats," said the politician.

"What's that?" asked the friend.

"In February they wear straw hats and in August get back to felt again," explained the politician.

"That's nothing," said the friend gloomily, "no matter what the material it makes itself felt in the pocketbook."

"Talking about being married," said the politician after a pause, "I am reminded of the tale of a friend of ours."

"What about him?" asked the friend.

"It seems," explained the politician, "that he had accumulated about $150 and decided that was enough to get married on and he sought out the girl of his choice and they were married."

"Go on," said the friend.

"They left for the big city after the ceremony," continued the politician, "and spent just one night there, and the next morning the man awoke and found his bride missing."

"He was lucky," commented the friend.

"But his roll, or what was left of it, had disappeared at the same time," said the politician.

"That was not so fortunate," interrupted the friend.

"He was certainly up a tree and did not know what to do next," said the politician.

"What happened?" asked the friend.

"It's a wonder she left that," commented the friend.

"The only reason was," explained the politician, "was because it had accidentally got stuck in his tobacco pouch with his tobacco, and he found it when he started to fill his pipe."

"What would have happened if he had not been a smoker?" asked the friend.

"He would have had to become a submarine," said the politician.

"What do you mean?" asked the friend.

"Silent," replied the politician.

"Getting back to spring fever," said the politician, "I know it is here from your actions when I met you."

"How is that?" asked the friend.

"Was not that a seed catalogue you were studying?" said the politician.

"It was at that," replied the friend.

"Why don't you go in for chickens this year instead of a garden?" asked the politician.

"Where did you get the idea of raising chickens?" the friend wanted to know.

"I read somewhere," explained the politician, "that there was good money in raising chickens."

"Somebody was stringing you," commented the friend.

"No more action about it than a seed catalogue," retorted the politician.

"I have a good idea though," continued the politician thoughtfully.

"What is it?" asked the friend.

"The main reason why you don't get so many eggs in the winter," explained the politician, "is because the days are shorter, and hens won't lay while it's dark."

"That sounds reasonable," commented the friend.

"Now my idea would be," explained the politician, "to separate the light and the dark colored chickens."

"Why?" asked the friend.

"It would seem to me," said the politician, "that on a dark day fowls with dark plumage make the coop even darker than usual, and consequently if you have any luck at all you will get only a few eggs."

"What's your idea?" asked the friend.

"To light the coop with electricity."

"No I have a better plan than that," said the politician, "I would take this stuff you use on matches and coat the plumage of my fowls with it."

"What for?" asked the friend.

"Then at night when it is dark," explained the politician, "the phosphorus on the chicken's feathers would commence to glow and the hens would think it was daylight and start in laying."

There are an many things—best things—that can only come when you're in past that it may well happen to many of us to find ourselves happier and happier to the last—Ellot.

WINTER FRUITS.

At this season of the year when canned fruit is disappearing as well as the jams and jellies, we are forced to think about dried fruits.

In preparing dried fruit it is well to remember that it needs a good soaking to restore the moisture lost by drying. No amount of cooking will soften the fruit as soaking overnight will do. Dates and figs are so rich in sugar that they do not need soaking as a rule.

A most delicious marmalade may be made of the fresh orange, grapefruit, and lemon, using one of each sliced as fine as possible, discarding the seeds.

Cover the sliced fruit with three quarts of cold water and let it stand overnight, or better 24 hours. Then simmer for an hour and a half and again let stand overnight. The next day add five pounds of light brown sugar and cook slowly until the fruit is clear. Turn into glasses and cover as for ordinary jelly.

Spiced Prunes.—Soak a pound of large prunes overnight in water to cover. In the morning stew in the same water until soft, adding a two-inch stick of cinnamon, the grated rind of half a lemon, six cloves; when the fruit is still hot add a half a cupful each of sugar and butter.

Prune and Apple Paly-Poly.—Roll out a rich pastry very thin, heap on it two cupfuls of finely chopped apples and a cupful of drained, stoned, and slightly chopped, stewed prunes. Roll up and place in a deep saucepan; cover with boiling water, a cupful of brown sugar and two tablespoonsful of butter. Bake one hour and serve with whipped cream and the sauce in which it was cooked.

Cranberries are also delicious, spiced as one does other fruit. To three quarts of berries use three and a half pounds of brown sugar, two cupfuls of vinegar, a tablespoonful of allspice, a teaspoonful of cloves and a three-inch stick of cinnamon. The vinegar, if very acid, should be diluted. The spices may be removed before putting in the glasses if desired.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAR. 14, 1917.

For the shorter hours and automatic wage increase which they thought were presented to them in the Adamson law, the four railway brotherhoods are renewing their strike threats in the effort to gain such benefits by direct negotiations with the railroad heads rather than through another appeal to the politicians. The great piece of humanitarian legislation, as the Adamson law was once styled, is lost sight of in the shuffle preceding this new deal. It is now before the Supreme Court, but the question of its constitutionality no longer interests the brotherhoods. The leaders of the men will meet the railroad managers on Thursday and officially tell the latter of the calling of the initial strike in a great cumulative walk-out, the first step of which is set for Saturday night. The stop watch is already wound, and the railroad managers are expected to dance to the brotherhoods' fiddling, the same as Congress did last September when there were no "willful men" blocking the program for government wage-fixing. Since that time, the railroad men who were so enthusiastic about the provisions of that measure have become enlightened as to the vicious principles therein contained, as pointed out in these and so many other editorial columns six months ago. Now with the sanction and support of Mr. Gompers and a working agreement with the American Federation of Labor, the brotherhoods are back at the old strike tactics with their accompanying public-de-damned policy. The intrusion of this agitation at a critical time in National affairs well merits summary action on the part of the President. The railroad men have not only abused the public confidence in their refusal to accept arbitration, but they have pretty nearly exhausted the patience of the American people. To tie up even a part of our transportation agencies at a time of food shortage and threatened war is an act little short of treason.

It appears that the partition of the United States (with the assistance of Japan and Mexico) in the event of war was not a new idea in Germany when it was first officially proposed on February 19—twelve days before diplomatic relations were severed at Washington. The Rheinische Westfaelische Zeitung of February 10 is quoted as saying that if America enters the war "Japan's hour has struck" and that "nothing would be more desirable for Germany than that the Japanese should seize the west of the United States." There are indications that the proofs of such sentiment have opened the eyes of loyal Americans of German origin and that they have been forced to the conclusion that their mother country, as now controlled, is misrepresented as well as misled. Perhaps many citizens of Germany itself as well as the bulk of German-Americans are now disposed to agree with the Springfield Republican when it says:

A great land with a great people at the present moment no more reveals its true self than the English people did under the reactionary ministers of the Georges. Let Hohenzollern rule be swept away or curbed so that the will of the people may prevail, let military discipline yield to true freedom, and a new Germany may arise with which we and the rest of the world can live on good terms and with a full restoration of the admiration which all have felt for the achievements of German industry and German intellect. When a good ship has been captured by pirates and flies the black flag, it loses its old character. In the Zimmerman note German-Americans have had a distressing revelation of the true character of the crew which now man the German ship of State. The more they love Germany the more they ought to desire its reformation. In showing themselves good Americans they will show themselves also good friends of Germany. Permit the present unscrupulous government to accomplish its designs would be a disaster to the German people.

Dietitians have proved the advantage of eating bread made of whole wheat flour instead of the less nutritious white flour. The increasing seriousness of the world's wheat shortage is a new factor which has a bearing on the situation. At the present time we are producing white flour in quantities in spite of the waste of valuable food in its manufacture and the resultant product of a food inferior to the whole wheat product. The European belligerents have abolished the manufacture of white flour. The scarcity of wheat has been the chief incentive to that action. French estimates give two hundred millions of bushels as the shortage of wheat in the countries of the Entente, while the situation in the Central Empires is admittedly worse, although no figures are obtainable. The United States is twenty-six millions of bushels short in its wheat supply, according to the Department of Agriculture, which bases its figures upon normal exports. The supply of wheat and flour is stated to be the lowest within a generation. Still we continue to sift from our flour the very elements best adapted to the maintenance of life and health. Is it not about time that we, too, took steps to increase the output of the best flour by restricting the manufacture of white flour, which means waste of nutrition on such a tremendous scale? Some such measure would be the part of wisdom, while dependence upon the next crop to relieve the scarcity is the exact reverse.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Pa, what's a specialist?" "A man who has discovered which of his talents will bring him the most money, my son."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Rivers—"I am very much pleased with my new cook." Mrs. Bridges—"How long have you had her?" Mrs. Rivers—"Her day will be up tonight."—Judge.

"You always speak kindly of the absent?" "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne; "some tiresome people's absence is so desirable that I am willing to offer inducements."—Washington Star.

Old Lady—"Conductor, why did the train stop before we came to the station?" Conductor—"Ran over a pig, ma'am." Old Lady—"What was it on the track?" Conductor—"No—oh, no, we chased it up the embankment."—Fuchs.

"Several men have been with the company for more than thirty years. What shall we do to show our appreciation?" "Um, let's see. Suppose we give each man a gold ring on his collar." "Shall we require the men to pay for the same?" "No, that would hardly be fair. The company will pay half."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Practice Makes Perfect.

They were at the theater, and the young lady was immensely taken with the leading man. "Watch," she said, "with what precision he steps across the stage. Every stride is of exactly the same length."

Her escort was just a little jealous. "Yes," he said, cruelly, "I imagine that habit was acquired from walking the railroad ties."—Exchange.

Unneighborly.

Little Faith was possessed of a most friendly disposition. To satisfy her need for companionship she demanded speech affectionate and often. One night her brother was studying his arithmetic lesson assiduously. After calling to him several times without receiving a reply, she appealed to her father to stir him up.

"George is busy," her father said. "I know," replied Faith, "but he might at least have said, 'shut up!'"

Finish the Story.

The busy man was getting decidedly bored by the alleged old soldier's reminiscences. "This," said the alleged soldier, "was where the enemy massed in front of us. Here," pointing to another place on a soiled pocket map, "is where our division was drawn up. We employed in this direction, and our left wing was attacked by the enemy on this knoll. Just at this point I was wounded on the left shoulder, and a hundred yards further on I got my right arm shattered by a piece of our own shell—am—" "Yes," interrupted the busy man, "but where did you get your brains blown out?"—Philadelphia Star.

Limited Scriptural Knowledge.

The Christian Register tells a story of Senator Hoar. The eloquent Senator was urging up his colleagues the desirability of throwing open the doors of the United States to immigrants from all parts of the earth. He reached an impressive climax with a quotation from the Acts of the Apostles: "Get hath made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on the face of the earth." An opponent, better versed in the Scriptures, waited for the applause to subside, and then interjected the query: "Why does not the senator quote the rest of the text?" "What is it?" Senator Hoar asked, and the answer came back: "And hath fixed the bounds of their habitation."

Morning Glories.

Wild morning glories, like the lilies of the field, "toil not, neither do they spin." But though arrayed like Solomon, they are not sought after for landscape decoration. In the plant kingdom they are military oppressors, ousting every other aspirant for vegetable honors from every acre where they obtain a footing. Hence have sprung a strange lawsuit between two wealthy ranchers in Santa Barbara county, the one accusing the other of having seeded his land to these radiant but hostile flowers. — Los Angeles Times.

Standardized Lines

Less time consumed in the actual selling, means more time for personal contact with our friends.

Our shelves hold only standardized lines—products half sold by a name of merit gained by years of money—but they leave time for us to often hurried motorist to request a fog-lifting explanation of that point. That's what we want. To illustrate, consider, MILLER, Geared-to-the-Road TIRES.

Here is an established brand—a product deep-rooted in the regard of thousands of motorists. It is a real pleasure to sell Millers. No arguing—no visions of a scowling returning face. A quick sale. And the saving time can be devoted to assisting you.

This is the fourth of a weekly series outlining our policies and plans for serving the motorists of Kingston. Watch for them all!

CITY TREASURER'S NOTICE.

Special Assessment.

Notice is hereby given that I have received the warrant for the collection of the special assessment of 75 per cent of the expenses incurred in the construction of a sanitary sewer in Thomas street between Railroad avenue and Broadway, in the city of Kingston.

The same has been left with me for collection at my office in the city hall, in said city; that for thirty days from the date of this notice the said assessment may be paid without additional fees or charges, and that for the twenty succeeding days 2 per centum additional will be collected.

If any of the said special assessments shall remain unpaid at the time last mentioned, I shall give a written or printed notice to the person or persons against whom such assessment stands charged, requiring them to pay such unpaid assessment at my office within thirty days thereafter, with 5 per centum fees thereon, and one dollar for such notice, as required by the city charter.

Dated at the Treasurer's Office, City of Kingston, March 10th, 1917.

WARD B. EVERETT, City Treasurer.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed bids are solicited for labor and materials for the erection of a stone addition to the sewer building of the Kingston city water department. Bids to be filed with the Board of Water Commissioners, New York, according to the plans and specifications on file at the office of the water commissioners, city hall, Kingston, N. Y.

Bids will be opened at said office on March 22, 1917, at three o'clock p. m.

The Board of water commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all bids, must be accompanied with certified check for 10 per cent of the amount of the bid, payable to "Kingston Water Works Department."

HUDSON ICE CROP LARGE AND GOOD

Chairman Edward Hatch, Jr., Makes an Inspection of Ice Fields by Automobile—No Cultivating Necessary.

An inspection of the Hudson river ice crop of 1917 has been made on behalf of The Merchants' Association by Edward Hatch, Jr., chairman of its Committee on Pollution and Sewerage.

Chairman Hatch first called attention some years ago to the danger of cutting ice for domestic uses from certain portions of the Hudson river and especially to the danger of "cultivating" ice by permitting the river water to freeze upon the surface of the ice in order to increase its thickness.

Inspection from Automobile.

Mr. Hatch took an automobile at the city of Hudson and followed the course of the river southward over the principal ice harvesting fields. He reports his conclusions to The Association as follows:

"The high cost of living will not be reflected in the price of ice this summer, unless combinations artificially support the price. The ice harvest on the Hudson river has been the largest in a great many years. Nearly every ice house from above Troy south to Rhinecliff is full to the roof and the harvest is not yet over. The ice crop this year is better than for some time, as owing to the early cold weather, the water froze to commercial thickness and it was not necessary to resort to the outrageous practice of 'cultivating.' The ice is from eight to twelve inches thick and about one-quarter of the cake is snow ice.

Quantity and Quality.

"Experts say the crop is satisfactory as to quantity and the quality is as good as can be taken from a river as highly polluted as the Hudson is. There is scarcely a farmer or a resident of the state who has not filled his ice-house or stacked a sufficient amount to last him during the summer, and this will have an important bearing on the price.

"If all the ice houses on the Hudson river south from Troy were placed side by side they would make a series of buildings seven miles long."

The quality and quantity of the Hudson river ice crop are important to New York city because the greater part of the crop is brought down the river in barges and consumed there.

DIPLOMATIC CRISES

Breaking Off Relations Does Not Always Spell War.

WE HAVE HAD MANY CLASHES.

One of Our Disputes With France Brought Us to the Very Verge of Hostilities, but the Quarrel Was Amicably Settled—Our Break With Italy.

Several times before our break with Germany this country severed diplomatic relations with foreign powers without war as a result. We had a number of diplomatic crises with France, and we also broke with Venezuela, Nicaragua, Mexico and Italy, yet hostilities in each case were averted.

During President Madison's administration American commerce had suffered severely from the enforcement of the Berlin and Milan decrees, issued by Napoleon, and when peace was finally declared in Europe in 1815 this government at once sought monetary compensation for the damages done its citizens. While the French government readily admitted the justice of the claim, it seemed in no hurry to pay it, and the negotiations dragged along until President Jackson referred to the subject with unusual harshness in his first annual message to congress.

This action resulted in a treaty between the two nations, binding the French government to pay to the United States the sum of $5,000,000 in six annual installments. But the payments were not made, and this moved President Jackson to send another fiery message to congress, which put France in a rage and resulted in the ministers of both countries being recalled. President Jackson then abruptly demanded the payment of the money.

The reply of the French government in turn enraged this country. "We will pay the money," wrote the French foreign minister, "when the government of the United States is ready on its part to declare to us, by addressing its claim to us officially in writing, that it regrets the misunderstanding which has arisen between the two countries, that this misunderstanding is founded upon a mistake and that it never entered into its intention to call in question the good faith of the French government nor to take a menacing attitude toward France. If the United States does not give this assurance we shall be obliged to think that this misunderstanding is not the result of an error."

The excitement in this country and France soon approached that frenzy which precedes war, and the president's message contained nothing to allay it.

War preparations were made with frantic energy, a large French squadron appeared in the vicinity of the West Indies, and in congress John Quincy Adams made a speech so thrilling in its eloquence that when the venerable orator resumed his seat "the very walls shook with the thundering applause he had awakened." But that was all. A few weeks later President Jackson informed congress that he had accepted the offer of Great Britain to act as mediator in the dispute, with the proviso that the apology demanded by the French government was out of the question, and in May, 1836, the entire incident was brought to an appropriate conclusion by France paying the money due of its own accord without awaiting for the action of the arbitrator. Lewis Cass then went to France as minister plenipotentiary, and King Louis Philippe showed the true affection he felt for the United States by ordering a painting of President Andrew Jackson to be hung in the palace of the Tuilleries.

Our diplomatic relations with Italy were severed during President Benjamin Harrison's term.

Members of the Mafia, an Italian secret society, had perpetrated a series of murders in New Orleans. The activity of Chief of Police David C. Hennessey drew upon him the enmity of the conspirators, and he was murdered.

The jury acquitted six of the nine who had been arrested in connection with the conspiracy and disfigured as to the other three. A mob then stormed the jail and lynched those who had been acquitted, along with some others suspected.

Italy demanded reparation and the punishment of those guilty of being implicated in the hangings. Our government expressed regret, but explained that the state in which the crimes were committed had jurisdiction and Washington could not guarantee to punish those accused of taking part in the lynching.

That did not suit Italy. Baron Fava, the Italian minister, was recalled, and diplomatic relations between this country and Italy were severed. After the first heat of resentment had passed negotiations were resumed, and we settled by the payment of $25,000 indemnity to the families of the victims and expressing our regret to the Italian government.

The Iron Glove.

A refinement of cruelty is the torture of the "iron glove," as it is called, which used to be common in Morocco. A lump of quicklime is placed in a man's hand, which is closed up into a fist. Then the fist is tightly bound with leather thongs and plunged into a tub of cold water. The agony soon becomes extreme. The torture is continued for eight or ten days, until in the end mortification ensues and probably death.

Calumny would soon starve and die of itself if nobody took it in and gave it a lodging.—Leighton.

The Largest Painting.

The largest painting, exclusive of frescoes and panoramas, is Titoretto's "Paradise." It is hung in the grand salon of the doge's palace at Venice and is eighty-four feet wide and thirty-four feet high.

MARBLESTONE'S

Utility in Smart Coats

Hickson, the Fifth avenue authority, has fashioned a general utility coat which is at once practical and truly useful. It is of old rose serge heavily ribbed, and it is cut with pockets and belt and buttons just where each needs to be. With the coat is worn a hat of old rose tussur edged with hemp and cords and trimmed with wonderful glowing beads of deep coral.

What could be more charming or evening wear than this surplice cape of rose teta? The high collar is embroidered in glimmering silver and silver tassels fall from the pointed pockets. The entire cape shirra onto the collar and surplice. The surplice itself is a broad, longish-like piece of taffeta which starts where the high, stiff collar ends. Tobe Gill designed the look.

Seagulls Foretell Weather.

Seagulls are undoubtedly weather prophets. Dwellers on the coast have noticed that when certain winds begin to blow the gulls collect in large flocks and fly to the fields or circle high over the land, screaming all the while uneasily. After such demonstrations it is said that a rainstorm is certain to follow.

Some Things to Be Shunned.

It is better to be cold than dead. Never run an automobile engine long behind closed doors. Never use a gas heater that is not fitted with an adequate vent into an open flue. Never go to sleep in a room leaving a gas burner burning. Always leave a window open in every room occupied by sleeping persons.

Reel of Tattling.

We see tattling has been revived in our best flies, but we don't suppose it will any more difficult for a thoughtful fly to hold his wife's undivided attention as he discusses the tariff in its various aspects and ramifications if it has been under the fillet-crocheting machine.—Ohio State Journal.

TORPEDO TRAP.
TORPEDO CATCHER DESIGNED TO FRUSTRATE SUBMARINE ATTACK.

Heavy wire net used to frustrate submarine torpedo attacks. The device consists of an arrangement of heavy wires in net form supported by a heavy steel frame. When the head of the torpedo hits the net, the rear comes out of the water and the propeller spins harmlessly in the air.

Eat More Fruit and Vegetables.

Irish potatoes and most other vegetables and fruits tend to make the body tissues and fluids alkaline, so correcting the tendency of meat, eggs, fish, and similar foods to create acid conditions. Since the body performs its work best when it is neutral or slightly alkaline, this function of fruits and vegetables is important, especially to the hearty meat eater.

Was Still Sore on Gretta.

I have a little niece aged four and a nephew aged eight. They had a little quarrel before being put to bed. Each had to repeat his evening prayer. Light repeated his as he had been taught. Then added, "Don't bless Gretta, God! she ain't no good."—Cleveland Leader.

Vindictive.

May—"She said she would never forgive him." Ethel—"But she afterwards married him." May—"That merely shows that she meant what she said."

Food for Thought.

"You say you want to marry my daughter. Have you spoken to her?" "Yes, sir," replied the young man, "and have gained her consent." "Well, if she has said 'Yes,' that settles it. Anything I might say or do wouldn't have the slightest influence." Then the young man went home and wondered if he were too young to marry such a girl.

More Useful if Less Poetic.

A poetic contributor recently submitted to a northern weekly an effusion, entitled "The Lay of the Lark." It was returned with this editorial note: "Rejected with thanks. Send a few specimens of the lay of the hen. We will gladly accept them."

Economy.

Unquestionably, honesty is the best policy, but a lot of folks think they can get along with something less expensive.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Why Salem Is "Pepper Port."

The first shipment of pepper ever brought into the United States was landed at Salem, Mass., by Jonathan Carnes, a Salem captain, in the year 1795. Other captains discovered the vast profits to be made by the importation of pepper, and so it came about that, up to as recently as 1861, Salem was known among seafaring men as the "Pepper port."

Never Rains but It Pours.

A New Hampshire man ran a mile to catch a train, lost one rubber in transit, in his excitement swallowed a chew of tobacco, and, because his gait was unsteady, wound up by being arrested on a charge of intoxication. That's what we call a run of hard luck.—Buffalo Times.

Usually Slender.

While there is life there is hope, but it isn't a very strong hope when the doctors hold a consultation.—Atchison Globe.

CHANCE TO SERVE ARMY RECRUITING

War Department Will Welcome Cooperation of All Citizens in Bringing Regular Army up to Required Quota.

Those who are interested in preparedness can render no more effective service, at present, than by using their utmost influence to recruit the regular army to the strength authorized by law. It is not overlooked the fact that the regular army, as well as a volunteer army, is composed of volunteers, and that both form a part of the army of the United States. The regular army is already organized, but needs additional men now. A volunteer army, in addition to the regular army, can be organized only under special authority of congress and is not in existence at present. Under the laws in force the conditions of service as to term of enlistment and opportunity for return to civil life after service with the colors are practically equal in the regular army and in a volunteer army.

The regular soldier serves three years with the colors and is then entitled to a furlough to the reserve, which relieves him from further active service in time of peace. He is also eligible in time of peace to be furloughed to the reserve after one year's service with the colors if he is reported by his immediate commander as proficient and sufficiently trained, and is serving within the continental limits of the United States. Thus, under normal conditions, the maximum service with the colors in the regular army, at the option of the soldier, is three years and the minimum service with the colors is one year. Under the law, the term of enlistment of the "volunteer" is three years, but these volunteers will be mustered out in a less time if peace is restored or the menace of war ceases. It is unlikely that the minimum time of service with the colors will be less than a year. A man who enlists in the regular army is immediately placed in training under competent instructors and under officers who know how to care for him and how to teach him his military duties in the shortest possible time.

The First Regiment of Infantry was organized 128 years ago. The Second Infantry was organized in 1791; the Third and Fourth Regiments of Infantry in 1792; the Fifth and Sixth Regiments of Infantry in 1793; the Seventh Infantry in 1815; the Eighth Infantry in 1833; the Ninth and Tenth Regiments of Infantry in 1855; the Infantry Regiments numbered from Eleven to Twenty-three inclusive, were organized in May, 1861. All these Infantry Regiments as well as those organized since the Civil War, are organizations in which anyone may proudly to serve. Nearly all of them now need from 200 to 400 additional men.

All able bodied male citizens under 35 years of age who desire to prepare themselves for the military service in the national defense, and have no one dependent upon them for support, may be safely advised to enlist at once in the regular army—the great military training school of the nation and the backbone of the first line of land defense.

Application for enlistment may be made to any postmaster of the third or fourth class, or at the recruiting office.

Immediate assistance in obtaining men now needed for the regular army can be given by any patriotic citizen or association.

By encouraging qualified men to enlist at once.

By giving information to the recruiting officer for the regular army the names and addresses of men who are likely to enlist.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAR. 14, 1917.

For the shorter hours and automatic wage increase which they thought were presented to them in the Adamson law, the four railway brotherhoods are tendering their strike threats in the effort to gain such benefits by direct negotiations with the railroad heads rather than through another appeal to the politicians. The great piece of humanitarian legislation, as the Adamson law was once styled, is lost sight of in the shuffle preceding this new deal. It is now before the Supreme Court, but the question of its constitutionality no longer interests the brotherhoods. The leaders of the men will meet the railroad managers on Thursday and officially tell the latter of the calling of the initial strike in a great cumulative walk-out, the first step of which is set for Saturday night. The stop watch is started, and the railroad managers are expected to dance to the brotherhoods' bidding, the same as Congress did last September when there were no "wild men" blocking the program for government wage-fixing. Since that time, the railroad men who were so enthusiastic about the provisions of that measure have become enlightened as to the vicious principles therein contained, as pointed out in these and so many other editorial columns six months ago. Now with no sanction and support of Mr. Compens and a working agreement with the American Federation of Labor, the brotherhoods are back at the old strike tactics with their accompanying public-be-damned policy. The intrusion of this agitation at a critical time in National affairs well merits summary action on the part of the President. The railroad men have not only abused the public confidence in their refusal to accept arbitration, but they have pretty nearly exhausted the patience of the American people. To tie up even a part of our transportation agencies at a time of food shortages and threatened war is an act little short of treason.

It appears that the partition of the United States (with the assistance of Japan and Mexico) in the event of war was not a new idea in Germany when it was first officially proposed on February 12—twelve days before diplomatic relations were severed at Washington. The Rheinische Westfälische Zeitung of February 10 is quoted as saying that if America enters the war "Japan, hour by hour, becomes more desirable for Germany than the Japanese should seize the west of the United States." There are indications that the roots of such sentiment have opened the eyes of loyal Americans of German origin and that they have been forced to the conclusion that their mother country, as now controlled, is represented as well as misled. Perhaps many citizens of Germany itself as well as the bulk of German-Americans are now disposed to agree with the Springfield Republican when it says:

A great land with a great people at the present moment is more revealing its true self than the English people did under the reactionary ministers of the Georges. Let Hohenzollern rule be swept away or curbed so that the will of the people may prevail, let military discipline yield to true freedom, and a new Germany may arise with which we and the rest of the world can live on good terms and with a full restoration of the civilization which all have built for the achievement of German industry and German intellect. When a good ship has been captured by pirates and flies the black flag it loses its old character. In the Zimmerman note German-Americans have had a distressing revelation of the true character of the crew, which now man the German ship of State. This note they love Germany the more they ought to desire its reformation. In showing themselves good Americans, they will show themselves also good friends of Germany. For the present, an unscrupulous government to accomplish its designs would be a disaster to the German people.

Dictation. Have proved the advantage of eating bread made of whole wheat flour instead of the less nutritious white flour. The increasing seriousness of the world's wheat shortage is a new factor, which has a bearing on the situation. At the present time we are producing white flour in quantities in spite of the waste of valuable food in its manufacture and the resultant product of a food inferior to the whole wheat product. The European bakers have abolished the manufacture of white flour. The scarcity of wheat has been the chief incentive to that action. French estimates give two hundred millions of bushels as the shortage of wheat in the countries of the Entente, while the situation in the Central Empires is admittedly worse, although no figures are obtainable. The United States is twenty-six millions of bushels short in its wheat supply, according to the Department of Agriculture, which bases its figures upon normal exports. The supply of wheat and flour is stated to be the lowest within a generation. Still we continue to sift from our flour the very elements best adapted to the maintenance of life and health. Is it not about time that we, too, took steps to increase the output of the best flour by restricting the manufacture of white flour, which means waste of nutrition on such a tremendous scale? Some such measure would be the part of wisdom, while dependence upon the next crop to relieve the scarcity is the exact reverse.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Pa, what's a specialist?" "A man who has discovered which of his talents will bring him the most money, my son."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Rivers—"I am very much pleased with my new cook." Mrs. Bridges—"How long have you had her?" Mrs. Rivers—"Her day will be up tonight."—Judge.

"You always speak kindly of the absent!" "Yes," replied Miss Gargrave, "some tiresome people's absence is so desirable that I am willing to offer inducements."—Washington Star.

Old Lady—"Conductor, why did the train stop before we came to the station?" Conductor—"Ran over a pig, ma'am." Old Lady—"What? Was it on the track?" Conductor—"No—oh, no, we crashed it up the embankment."—Puck.

"Several men have been with the company for more than thirty years. What shall we do to show our appreciation?" "I'm, let's see, suppose we give each man a gold ring on his collar." "Shall we require the men to pay for the same?" "No, that would hardly be fair. The company will pay half."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Practice Makes Perfect.

They were at the theater, and the young lady was immensely taken with the leading man. "Watch," she said, "with what precision he steps across the stage. Every stride is of exactly the same length."

Her escort was just a little jealous. "Yes," he said, cruelly, "I imagine that habit was acquired from walking the railroad ties."—Exchange.

Unrighteous.

Little Faith was possessed of a most filthy disposition. To satisfy her need for companionship she demanded speech affectionate and often. One night her brother was studying his arithmetic lesson assiduously. After calling to him several times without receiving an answer, she appealed to her father to tell him up.

"George is busy," he, father said. "I know," replied Faith, "but he might at least have said, 'shut up.'"

Finish the Story.

The busy man was getting decidedly bored by the alleged old soldier's reminiscences. "This," said the tired officer, "was where the enemy was in front of us. Here," pointing to another place, "on a sudden pocket was made. We were on a division as we drove up. We were in this direction, and our last line was attacked by the enemy on this flank. As at this point I was wounded on the left shoulder, and a hundred yards further on I got my right arm shattered by a piece of our own shell—an—" "Yes," interrupted the busy man, "but where did you get your brains blown out?"—Philadelphia Star.

Limited Christian Knowledge.

The Christian Register tells of a Senator Rogers, who, in the course of a speech, up to the collar, was desirous of throwing open the doors of the United States to immigrants from all parts of the earth. He reached an impressive climax with a quotation from the Acts of the Apostles: "Gat hath made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on the face of the earth." An opponent, better versed in the Scriptures, waited for the applause to subside, and then interrupted the query: "What does the senator quote the rest of the text?" "What is it?" Senator Rogers asked, and the answer came back: "And hath fixed the borders of their habitation."

Morning Glories. With morning glories, like the lilies of the field, "toil not, neither do they spin." But though arrayed like Solomon, they are not sought after for land-cover decoration. In the plant kingdom they are military oppressors, cutting every other plant for vegetable honors from every acre where they obtain a footing. Hence have sprung a strange lawsuit between two wealthy ranchers in Santa Barbara county, the one asserting the other of having secured his land to these radiant but hostile flowers. — Los Angeles Times.

Standardized Lines

Less time consumed in the actual selling, means more time for personal contact with our friends. Our shelves hold only standardized lines—products half sold by a service. They cost more to us—in money—but they leave time for a often hurried motorist to request a that's what we want. To illustrate, consider MILLER. Geared-to-the-Road TIRES.

Here is an established brand—a product deep-rooted in the regard of thousands of motorists. It is a real pleasure to sell Millers. It is arguing—no visions of a scowling, returning fare. A quick sale. And the saved time can be devoted to assisting you.

GOOD ROADS IN NATION'S FORESTS

Uncle Sam Will Open Up New Public Playgrounds.

A SCENIC WONDERLAND

The National Forests Number 150 and Cover an Area of About 162,000,000 Acres—These Are to Be Made Accessible by an Appropriation of $10,000,000.

Uncle Sam is preparing to open up a new public playground to the people of the United States.

The national forests—150 of them, covering an area of about 162,000,000 acres—are to be made accessible by the expenditure of the recent appropriation by congress of $10,000,000 for roads through these hitherto little known sections. A million dollars a year is to be spent by the forest service for the next ten years in this work, and, inasmuch as the states and counties will contribute a like amount, government officials figure that approximately 6,000 miles of new road will be constructed during the life of the appropriation.

This mileage will not only make it possible for travelers to penetrate to the heart of the virgin woods and enjoy scenic pleasures which have formerly been inaccessible, but it will form a species of insurance against forest fires which has been almost entirely lacking in the past, in addition to rendering far more habitable the hot and otherwise disagreeable sections.

visions lying on the outskirts of the forests, districts from which the residents now have to travel scores of miles to secure relief from the heat.

The forest service had been trying for years to obtain from congress an appropriation which would enable them to construct these much needed roads, but the legislation always failed. The bill, however, was finally passed, and last summer the service was notified that the money was available for the needs of the wooded sections set aside by the government for the use of the people.

"The $10,000,000 appropriation, carried as a part of the $85,000,000 good roads bill," said Chief Forester Henry S. Graves in discussing the matter recently, "will mean a great deal not only to the forests and the residents of the adjacent country, but to the people of the United States as a whole. It will mean that we will be able to construct about five times as many miles of road per year as formerly, that the interior of the forests, containing some of the most wonderful natural scenery on the continent, will be opened to easy automobile travel; that the forest rangers will be enabled to fight the costly forest fires with far greater ease than formerly and that the residents of nearly low sections, who formerly had no relief from the heat of summer, will now be able to enjoy the coolness of the woods near by instead of traveling many miles to some more accessible spot.

"The road problem of the forests is being met in two ways—first, by the work of public improvements being carried on by the government in the forests, and second, by the direct contribution to the counties from a share in the receipts from the forests. Every year the government has built in the forests roads, trails, bridges, telephone lines and other improvements. The national forests have been under administration only a decade, yet there have already been constructed 2,600 miles of roads, 22,000 miles of trails, some 600 bridges and nearly 20,000 miles of telephone lines. Every one of these improvements benefits some settlers and ranchers. Many are the communities made accessible through the roads, bridges and trails; many of the ranchers have been brought into pleasant and profitable communication with neighbors and outside places by the forest service and telephones, and many tourists have witnessed new scenic delights through the work of the service."

Iowa Protects Road Signs.
A fine of not over $100 or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than a year, or both, at the discretion of the court, is the penalty prescribed by the Iowa statute for injuring or defacing "any signboard, design or other markings designating routes."

The Polite Way.
"Pa, what do people mean when they say a man has a comfortable income?" "That's just a polite way of saying that he has less than they think necessary for themselves." — Detroit Free Press.

Little Sammy Dresser

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

"Well, I like that!" exclaimed Sam Dresser as he opened and read a letter left by the postman on his morning round.

The letter referred to was addressed to Samuel E. Dresser. Sam had no middle name. It notified him that his uncle, William Dresser, had died and left a son, Samuel, six years old. William Dresser had provided in his will that this boy, having no mother, should go to live with his cousin, Samuel E. Dresser, who was to be his guardian. In case Mr. Dresser declined the charge, then Miss Amelia Wilkins, a distant relative, was to take his place. The writer had no knowledge of Miss Wilkins except that the testator had attached to the will her photograph, with her address written on the back. This he inclosed.

Dresser looked at the photograph and fell in love with it. It may seem singular that a man should fall in love with a photograph. But why not? This girl looked at Dresser out of a pair of honest, merry eyes that seemed to say to him, "You are my fate, and I will love you forever." It is difficult for some persons while looking at picture plays to remember that the players are mere photographs. One can imagine a man falling in love with a woman on the screen. Is it much more to fall in love with a single photograph of her?

Anyway, Miss Wilkins in the photograph looked at Dresser in a way that made him long to meet her. The letter had evidently been delivered to the wrong Dresser. Sam concluded that he would try to find the right one through Miss Wilkins. He wrote her a note stating the case as it was, but tore it up and wrote another in the name of the orphan, stating that his father had died and left him to the care of "Uncle Sam," but Uncle Sam wouldn't have him, so, according to the will, he was to go to Cousin Amelia.

Back came a reply stating that Uncle Sam was a hard-hearted wretch and Sammie must come to Cousin Amelia. She would take care of him and love him dearly.

"All of which means," said Sam to himself, "that I will be glad to take care of her and love her dearly."

The photograph did not represent a girl over seventeen or eighteen, and Sam was only nineteen. What did the scamp do but dress himself up in knickerbockers and a short coat and, taking a carriage, drive up to Miss Wilkins' house. There he told the maid who admitted him to tell Cousin Amelia that he was Sammie Dresser. When Amelia Wilkins came downstairs to greet her cousin she was somewhat astonished to see an overgrown boy who looked too old for his clothes. Her first thought was "What shall I do with him?" She received him as kindly as possible, then, going upstairs, consulted an aunt with whom she lived, for Amelia, too, was an orphan, and the two sat down to the problem of whether to turn out little Sammie Dresser to the mercies of the world or take charge of him.

Upon the advice of her aunt, Amelia returned to Sammie and told him that she had supposed him to be a child, but, seeing that he was old enough to take care of himself, she did not think it would be proper for her to adopt him. Sam replied that he had been thinking there must be some mistake.

Sam departed, leaving her the letter which had induced him to call upon her. In the course of a week he called in propria persona. When Miss Wilkins looked at him she was as much astonished as she was when he called on her before.

"You find me changed, don't you?" said Sam innocently and in his own natural deep voice. He had used a falsetto before. "My father kept me back, treating me as a child. You made me see how much behind my age I was. When I left you I resolved to be a man."

Miss Wilkins was so puzzled that for awhile she did not know what to do or say, but Dresser looked so proud of himself for throwing off the coddling influences which had kept him back that she gradually became accustomed to the change, and Sam spent a very happy evening with her.

When Dresser departed he was cordially invited to call again. Before doing so he sent a basket of cut flowers to Miss Wilkins with a note confessing the fact that when her photograph had fallen into his hands he had been so bewitched by it that he could not resist the temptation to use the mistake that had been made to make her acquaintance. He threw himself on her mercy.

Miss Wilkins was very merciful. Indeed, she had a keen eye for the ludicrous and was very lenient over her admirer's attempt to personate a small boy. Sam followed up the flowers with a call and an invitation to dine with him in the park. Whether it was the absurdity of his act or the course that led him to it is not known, but it is quite likely that it was the latter. Sam was a fine fellow, and a woman is not likely to spurn devotion. At any rate, Miss Wilkins consented to become Mrs. Dresser.

One day the husband and wife were strolling in the park when a little boy rolling a hoop ran against them. Among other questions, they asked him his name.

"I'm Sammie Dresser," was his reply. Both Sam and Amelia burst into a laugh. Not hearing from Sam or Amelia, the lawyer who had written to Sam had adopted the boy.

Old English Physicians.
The England of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was a rich field for physicians, and their influence was extended in many directions. Some were very serious-minded persons who did much to advance medical science—others were famed for their adroit ways of amassing wealth. If England has produced Doctor Arbuthnot, it has also had such practitioners as gruff Hans Sloane, who grew old at his aristocratic patients instead of flatterers them.

"An Eye for an Eye."
"Lex talionis" means the law of retaliation. It provided that the punishment should be the same in kind as the crime. Thus we have the expressions, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." Many other expressions like these are found in the Bible and elsewhere.

Mining in Lical Times.
The operation mining as known to the early Egyptians is given in the twenty-eighth chapter of Job. The description is hypothetical. In Egypt the mines were worked by groups of captives in fetters. The rocks were broken by fire, after which picks and chisels were used. Miners were quite naked, as negroes of today who work in the gold mines of South Africa.

Potatoes Cooked in Skins.
Approximately 20 per cent of each potato goes to ordinary household methods in the process. The loss includes much and sometimes all of the part of the tuber containing important salts. Potatoes that are boiled in their skins lose probably none of their food value.

Robbie Tibetan Building.
The building in Lhasa (Tibet) that is imposing is the Potala, written by Candler. "It is not a palace hill, but a hill—that is also a palace. Its massive walls, its terraced bastions stretch upward from the foot of the crest as if the great bluffs were merely a foundation stone for them."

BEICHERT MADE LIFE MISERABLE

For His Parents on Susan Street, and Was Arrested on Complaint of his Father—Jailed for Four Months.

William Beichert of Susan street, who has been in court a number of times before, was arraigned again this morning before Recorder Lang on the same old charge of getting drunk and misusing his parents, who are respected residents. In fact, Beichert has been brought to court a number of times on the complaint of his parents and each time he promises to behave himself and honor his father and mother. As soon as he gets drunk, however, he forgets his promise and proceeds to make life miserable.

This morning Beichert, who is 36 years old, pleaded hard with the court to be lenient and give him another chance and he would leave town. He has made those promises before and Recorder Lang turned a deaf ear to his pleas and sentenced Beichert to four months in the county jail.

The son when he found that the court would not listen to his pleas called his father to one side and endeavored to have him withdraw the charge but the father had evidently put up with more than he could stand from the son for he refused and left the court room.

Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

A meeting of the pastor and deacons to receive new members will be held at the church this Thursday evening at seven o'clock. All who intend to unite with the church at this season of the year are asked to be present then.

The prayer meeting will be held on Thursday evening at half past seven. The topic will be, "A More Excellent Way."

On Friday evening at eight o'clock "A Pageant of the Nations" will be given in the church. It will be a representation of the missionary work in different nations of the world, and nearly a hundred people will take part, all in costume.

It will be in every way a unique entertainment, with music, speaking and action. The committee under the direction of Mrs. C. K. Moulton, have been working very hard to make it a success. The proceeds will be used entirely for missionary work.

Took Her Down a Peg.

One of the anecdotes in Gamaliel Bradford's "Portraits of Women" describes an encounter between George Ticknor, the Boston publisher, and Lady Holland. "I understand, Mr. Ticknor," said the haughty ruler of London society, "that New England was originally settled by convicts." "I was not aware of that," Ticknor replied promptly, "but I know that some of the Vasa's, your ancestors, were early settlers in Massachusetts."

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Boys' Middy Suit.

1764—This design is a popular style, good for wash and woolen goods. It makes a very comfortable school and play suit. Blue serge with soutache braid, or white linen with simple stitching for a finish would be very suitable. The blouse is provided with an adjustable shield. The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 3, 4, 5, 6 and 8 years. It requires 3 3/4 yards of 27-inch material for a 4-year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

HUDSON ICE CROP LARGE AND GOOD

Chairman Edward Hatch, Jr., Makes an Inspection of Ice Fields by Automobile—No Cultivating Necessary.

An inspection of the Hudson river ice crop of 1917 has been made on behalf of 'The Merchants' Association by Edward Hatch Jr., chairman of its Committee on Pollution and Sewerage.

Chairman Hatch first called at location some years ago, to the danger of cutting ice for domestic use from certain portions of the Hudson river and especially to the danger of "cultivating" ice by permitting the river water to freeze upon the surface of the ice in order to increase its thickness.

Inspection from Automobile

Mr. Hatch took an automobile at the city of Hudson and followed the course of the river southward over the principal ice harvesting fields. He reports his conclusions to the Association as follows:

The high cost of living will not be reflected in the price of ice this summer unless combinations artificially support the price for harvesting. The Hudson river has been the largest in a great many years. Nearly every ice house from above Troy south to Rhinecliff is full to the roof and the harvest is not over. The ice crop this year is better than for some time as owing to the early cold weather the water froze to commercial thickness and it was not necessary to resort to the outrageous practice of cultivating. The ice is from eight to twelve inches thick and about one-quarter of the cake is snow ice.

Quantity and Quality.

Experts say the crop is satisfactory as to quantity and the quality is as good as can be taken from a river as highly polluted as the Hudson is. There is scarcely a farmer or a resident of the state who has not filled his ice-house or stacked a sufficient amount to last him during the summer and this will have an important bearing on the price.

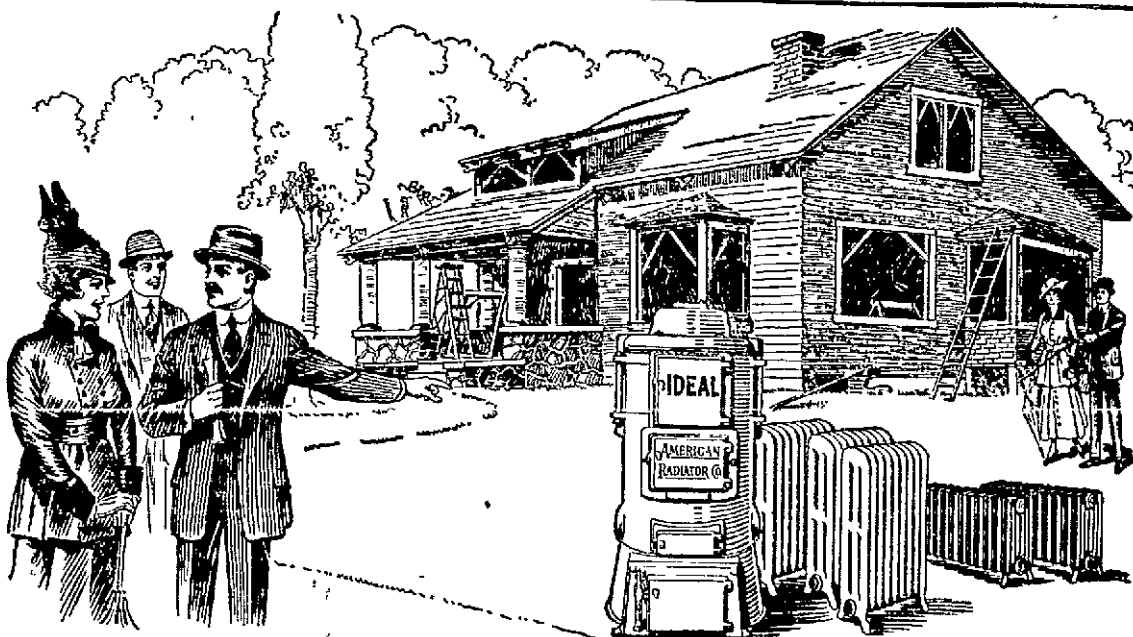

If all the ice-houses on the Hudson river south from Troy were placed side by side they would make a series of buildings seven miles long.

The quality and quantity of the Hudson river ice crop are important to New York city because the greater part of the crop is brought down the river in barges and consumed there.

AWAITS ACTION OF SUPERVISORS

Health Board Decides Not to Expend $700 Equipping Laboratory in City Hall Until It is Seen Whether Supervisors Engage a Bacteriologist.

As the board of supervisors of Ulster county will meet shortly the board of health at the regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening decided not to spend $700 in fitting up a laboratory on the top floor of the city hall for testing milk until it was seen whether the supervisors engaged a bacteriologist and reopened the county laboratory on John street, or not.

At the last meeting of the health board a committee consisting of Charles L. McBride, Dr. E. E. Norwood and Frank Kaufman were appointed to investigate whether the county laboratory could be secured for milk tests or whether it would be feasible to open a laboratory in the city hall. This committee submitted a report at the meeting stating that at the time the committee was appointed it was generally understood that there was little prospect of the county laboratory being in operation in the near future and so there was only discussed in the board meeting two propositions, namely, the feasibility of equipping a small laboratory to do milk work or the possibility of renting the county laboratory for that purpose, and it was along these lines the committee worked.

A third proposition was later offered the committee and is embodied in the report.

Would Cost $700.
The first proposition of equipping a laboratory was investigated. Essential equipment was carefully itemized and estimates of cost made. In round numbers it amounted to $700.

County Laboratory Prospects.
On consultation with the chairman of the laboratory committee appointed by the board of supervisors we learned that there were prospects of the laboratory being opened. Further, the committee would not have authority to rent the laboratory and to consider such a matter would necessitate a meeting of the board of supervisors.

The Third Proposition.
The third proposition was offered to the committee by several doctors of the Ulster County Medical Society. Briefly it was this: If the health board would enter into an agreement to pay a flat sum to the bacteriologist of the county laboratory this sum to pay for all of the work which the board might desire done the Ulster County Medical Society would also appropriate a sum so that the bacteriologist would be assured of enough pay work to meet the running expenses of the laboratory.

Milk Work on Fee Basis.
In connection with this third proposition the fact must not be lost sight of that there is a resolution of the board of supervisors which places all milk work of health board on a fee basis, namely $2 each for chemical and bacterial examination.

Whether in view of the action of the board of supervisors it will be possible to arrange for a contract with the bacteriologist with the sanction or permission of the supervisors is problematical at the time this report is written.

Without Comment.
The injection of this third proposition which is along lines not outlined in the original instructions given to your committee is such that your committee does not do other than refer the report for your consideration without comment.

Report Filed.
The report was read and filed. It was brought out by Commissioner McBride that on the fee basis of making milk examinations it had cost the board about $800 a year when it was done at the county laboratory.

What Will Supervisors Do?
Dr. Norwood thought that if the supervisors engaged anyone it would likely be Dr. Van Winkle. It had been expected that when the matter came up the last time that something definite would be done, but the supervisors had adjourned without appointing a bacteriologist. What the supervisors will do at the next meeting is of course unknown.

Mayor Canfield Presided.
Mayor Canfield presided at the meeting with Commissioners Michael, McBride, Kaufman and Norwood present. Routine matters were discussed.

The reports of the officers of the board were received and filed. They read as follows:

Two THIEVES ARE SENT TO ALBANY

Clever Work of Sergeant Phinney Resulted in Arrest of Edward Bradford and Howard Trought—Brief Resume of Their Records.

Through the clever work of Sergeant Phinney on Tuesday, Edward Bradford and Howard Trought were rounded up on a charge of stealing iron from the property of the Newark Lime and Cement Company in Ponckhockie and selling it to a junk dealer. This morning both men were arraigned before Recorder Lang and pleaded guilty and were sentenced to four months each in the Albany penitentiary.

"Won't you please be lenient?" pleaded one of them as the court imposed sentence.

"I am lenient" replied Recorder Lang "I had intended to make it six months each" and he waved to Sergeant Phinney to lead them out.

Both men have quite a record. Trought, who is 33 years old, is now out on parole from Dannemora, where he had been sentenced by Judge Jenkins to serve a term for breaking into a store in Port Ewen some time ago. It is likely that after he completes his term in the Albany pen that he will be taken back to Dannemora to serve out his term.

Bradford has also been in trouble. He gave his age to the police as 22 years. Last summer he was arraigned before Recorder Lang on the charge of moving into a house on Third avenue without the owner's knowledge or consent. It developed at that time that the agent of the property had some business in North Londont one day and happened to pass the house and was astonished to find it occupied. He investigated and found that Bradford had moved his family into the house and refused to vacate. Finally the charge was dropped when the Bradfords vacated the premises. While they occupied this house they received a visit from the stork.

Bradford is also said to have served a month in the county jail on a charge of stealing chickens.

SUFFRAGE SCHOOL THURSDAY.

Sessions in Supervisors' Rooms to Extend to Saturday.

Mrs. Gordon Norrie of Staatsburg, chairman of the 10th Suffrage Campaign District, will open the Kingston Suffrage School in the supervisors' room of the court house tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The school will continue until the end of the week with sessions in the afternoons and evenings.

Mrs. John Blair, chairman of the publicity section of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, will be present at the opening session to talk on methods of securing publicity for the 1917 campaign. Mrs. Blair has managed two great suffrage balls in New York city, besides a "suffrage" baseball game and various other stunts. Miss Elinor Byrns, the young New York lawyer, who is to conduct the school will explain what the school must accomplish, and also sketch the history of manhood suffrage in England and the United States. The program for the other sessions is as follows:

Thursday Evening—

8-9—The history of woman suffrage.

9-9:30—Questions and general discussion.

9:30-10—Talk on how to speak in public.

Friday Afternoon—

2:30-3:15—Three minute speeches by class members on suffrage.

3:15-3:30—Brief criticisms of the speeches.

3:30-4:30—Arguments for suffrage.

Friday Evening—

8-9—Watchers' school.

9-10—Campaign methods.

Saturday Afternoon—

2:30-3:30—Address by Mrs. William G. Mitchell, suffrage grange chairman of the state.

3:30-4:20—Organization of street and mass meetings.

Saturday Evening—

8-9—Talk on the legal status of women.

9-10—Talk on press work.

Presbyterian Penny Supper.

The Ladies' Aid of the First Presbyterian Church are planning for a unique entertainment which at this time of high cost of living will prove profitable as well as entertaining—a penny supper—consisting of a fine menu, and, too, they are to have a sale of articles from the parcels post; not from the "dead letter office."

This sale and supper is scheduled for the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, March 28.

"Tyrants Transformed Into Skunks"

The contemptible plan of malicious slander to injure the sale of CAMEL cigarettes has been exposed. Such an insult to the intelligence of Mr. Jobber, Mr. Dealer and Mr. Smoker has been rightfully resented. That great force of justice and fairness that the average man always upholds still prevails.

Some say those responsible for this malicious slander once forced their way by biting and clawing the trade. Since having their teeth and claws pulled out, and realizing their inability to longer continue biting and scratching, they put on gum shoes, transformed themselves from tyrants into skunks, and are fighting by using their fetid odor to destroy a great brand which has won the confidence of the public.

Now that the object of these low-down tactics of lying to injure the sale of CAMEL cigarettes is known to the trade and consumer, it is acting like a boomerang, and the hides of these skunks, as they are called by some, are now being pierced by their own malicious slander.

We know from facts in our possession whose employees are circulating the damaging falsehoods about CAMEL cigarettes.

Here's Why They Are Doing It

The purity and delightfulness of CAMEL cigarettes have made them the largest selling brand of cigarettes in the world. We sold over four billions more CAMELS in the year 1916 than we sold in the year 1915. Think of that wonderful increase—a gain of four billions in one year! We have already sold over one billion more CAMELS during 1917 than we sold for the corresponding period of 1916. These record-breaking increases were made unassisted by coupons or premiums—standing alone on purity and delightfulness. Our increase alone in the sale of CAMEL cigarettes is more than the total sales of any other brand of cigarettes for the period stated.

What more positive testimonial of the purity and delightfulness of CAMEL cigarettes could be furnished than this tremendous and steady increase in their sales? Smokers will not permit themselves to be prejudiced against CAMEL cigarettes, to give up a brand that has brought them so much pleasure, now that they know that only envy and jealousy were the foundation for the malicious falsehoods put into circulation for the purpose of injuring the sale of CAMEL cigarettes.

CAMEL cigarettes are pure and they are delightful. We invite comparison with any cigarette in the world, at any price, and welcome fair and aboveboard competition from any manufacturer.

HEALTH AND WEALTH.

Health is the foundation of the world's prosperity. Wealth is the result of the tools of health. A strong, enduring body is good capital to begin business with. A sound mind and good judgment add greatly to its value. Possessed of these, a man may earn a living and enjoy it when earned.

Japanese bread is shaped somewhat like a stick of bamboo, being sold in strings.

The great man expects everything of himself; the small man expects everything of others.

A WASTED LIFE.

A man can have no greater delusion than that he can spend the best years of his life coining all his energies into money, neglecting his home, sacrificing friendships and everything else really worth while for money and yet find happiness at the end. There is never happiness in such a selfish life.

"What's your missus kicking about?" inquired the housemaid from next door.

"This is her night out, but I told her I had an engagement myself."—Kausas City Journal.

POWER OF FAITH.

Faith is not born for days of sunshine only. Faith does not find her truest and greatest power when the sunshine appears. It is the attribute of faith to believe in good in spite of evil; it is the attribute of faith to believe in the light although she is enveloped by the darkness.

One of the chief cold storage products of Italy is mulberry leaves, on which to feed the silkworms.

Organs were known before the time of Christ and were used in religious services early in the Christian era.

IMAGINATION.

A wise imagination is one of the best aids for living, and in no way is it likely to be more useful than in anticipating regrets. All regrets may be avoided if only we will think ahead far enough and clearly enough. "If I had only known!" we cry. But we might have known.

"What makes you so hoarse, Bob?" "I was up the best part of the night singing to the baby, trying to make him stop crying."

"Then why didn't you stop singing?"—Exchange.

CITY STREET IS NOT A BEDROOM

Although Frank Blown of Gage Street Evidently Thought It Was and Was Found Undressing on O'Neil Street by Officer Ryan.

While Policeman Ryan was patrolling O'Neil street about 10:30 o'clock Tuesday evening he rubbed his eyes in surprise as he ran across a man standing in the street in a decided state of negligence. The officer promptly placed him under arrest and after the man had resumed his pants escorted him to police headquarters where he gave his name as Frank Blown and his home on Gage street.

This morning Mr. Blown was arraigned before Recorder Lang and related a tale of having drunk a few beers too many. He said that he had a reason for undressing and explained in a whisper to the court what that reason was.

In reply to questions by the court Blown, who is a middle aged German, explained that he had three or four beers that day and "I was putty drunk," he added. He also explained that too much beer had made him sick. He also earnestly explained that he was not in the habit of drinking every day as "If I have no money I can't drink," said he. He pleaded for another chance and said he had a job waiting for him in Woodstock.

As he had never been in trouble before Recorder Lang was lenient and discharged him.

Nerves and Work.

The man with a weak heart or with shaky nerves is apt to become distracted if engaged on work that is full of quick surprises or excitement. The excitement itself saps his strength, interferes with his own safety and adds to the risk of hurting others, but there is much good and remunerative work that can be done by such a man. I would therefore try to steer him into a quiet occupation and would show him how to remedy his weakness or at least how to avoid getting worse.—M. W. Alexander in Industrial Management.

Dead Men's Teeth.

Before artificial teeth were created deficiencies had to be made good by the real article, so body snatchers ravaged the cemeteries at night, breaking up the jaws of the dead to extract their teeth to sell to dentists for insertion in live men's mouths. An army of these ghouls followed Wellington's army. They were licensed as sutlers, but once night fell out came their nippers, and they prowled over the battlefield extracting the teeth of the dead or dying.—London Mail.

Inexpensive Lighting.

Many of the peasant class in Spain make use of the bark of the cork oak to light their cottages at night. The bark is placed in a kettle, from which protrudes a spout, and when it is hot enough it gives off a gas which burns with considerable brilliancy.

The lighting is not expensive, and the peasant is careful to save the carbonized cork refuse, for he can sell it, as it is known commercially as "Spanish black," one of the intensely black-brown known among pigments.—London Standard.

Ruskin's Boyhood.

Ruskin's mother was an extraordinary woman. She was an evangelical Puritan of the strictest type and held strong views even on the sinfulness of toys. An aunt once bought the boy a Punch and Judy, but his mother immediately put it away, and he never saw it again. "My parents," Ruskin once said, "debarred me from all recreations but walking. They would not let me ride lest I should be thrown; boxing was dangerous because I might be drowned, and boxing my mother thought vulgar exercise."

Just at present they are working overtime at their rowing machines, getting ready and in trim "to take the water" as soon as spring-breaks.

YOUNG JAKE NEXT CHAMPION

Freely Predicted That Schaefer, Jr., Will Some Day Succeed Hoppe, the Incomparable.

"A chip off the old block." This is the expression currently used by billiard followers in their talks about "Young" Jake Schaefer, star balk-line player.

"Young" Jake is only a boy with boyish ideals, but he has perfected his style of play to such an extent during the last few months that the old-timers of the green cloth see in him a duplicate of his father, the late "Wizard" Schaefer, who reigned supreme in the billiard world before the advent of Hoppe. Like his accomplished parent, Young Jake is developing a wonderful stroke and under the tutelage of Willie Hoppe is absorbing knowledge rapidly. It is freely predicted that Schaefer will be the next champion, but that is still a long time off, as Hoppe is good enough to retain the title for a number of years.

POPULARITY OF HORSE RACES

Past Year Was One of Most Brilliant in History of Trotting Turf—Many Records Broken.

In many respects the past year was one of the most notable and brilliant in the history of the American trotting turf. In point of speed the season's records far surpassed those of any past year, as shown by the notable changes in the table of world's championship marks, records for the year, number of fast performances, both trotters and pacers, and number and quality of performers in the juvenile divisions.

That the harness racing sports or "the trots," are still popular with the American public, was demonstrated by the fact that close to 1,300 separate race meetings were held in this country during the season extending from June to December.

HOLD MULLANE WAS FASTEST

Former Cincinnati Pitcher Compared With Amos Rusie and Walter Johnson as Speediest Hurler.

During a recent argument between Cincinnati baseball fans the question arose as to the speediest pitcher. The name of Tony Mullane was connected with that of Amos Rusie and Walter Johnson. John B. Connolly, one of the oldest fans, declared that Tony Mullane was the speediest pitcher the game ever developed.

Unquestionably, the old-timers say, Mullane had great speed in his earlier years. It would be difficult, however, to make the admirers of Rusie's time believe Mullane pitched a speedier ball than their idol.

A new thing for a cigarette to do

LOTS of cigarettes may please the taste—that's all you've ever expected from a cigarette.

But here's a cigarette—Chesterfield—that, besides pleasing the taste, does another thing, the one thing you've always wished a cigarette would do—

Chesterfields let you know you are smoking—they "SATISFY"!

And yet, they're mild! Yes, mild.

Your first few puffs of a Chesterfield will tell you that this is new enjoyment you're getting out of a cigarette—a cigarette that "satisfies" and yet is mild.

It's the blend that does it—plus, of course, the quality of the tobaccos. For never before have such costly, high-quality Imported and Domestic tobaccos been blended together in any cigarette at anywhere near the price. And, remember, it's pure, natural tobacco—no so-called "processes" or artificial fussing—just natural tobacco.

This new-to-the-world blend is a real achievement—brought about by the skill and patience of some of the world's most expert cigarette blenders. And it can't be copied.

GIRL OF FIFTEEN READY TO ELOPE

Newburgh Man Held on Serious Charge as Result of Relations With Anna May Geyza—Kept Tryst Aboard Central Hudson Boat.

Arrested first on a complaint of abduction, when trapped by the Newburgh police in company with 15-year-old Anna May Geyza, William Haver, a night watchman, faced a charge of rape in the second degree. When arraigned Tuesday before Recorder Cantline he brazenly admitted the offense, and was held to await the action of the grand jury. The prisoner gave his age as 21 and said he is married. He comes from Kingston, according to the Newburgh News. The only man of that name in the city directory is the well-known builder of 51 Green street, who is not acquainted or related to his namesake in trouble in Newburgh. It is said the latter comes from Olive Branch.

Haver and the girl were both arrested Monday night on board the Central Hudson steamer "Martin," tied up for the winter at the foot of Third street. When Mrs. Anna Geyza went home from her work that night she found her daughter missing. From the neighbors she learned the girl had been seen to leave with a man taking a suitcase with her. Tracing the girl to the steamboat, the mother asked Officer William Martin to accompany her there. After some search the policeman located Haver and the girl hiding in different parts of the boat. They were locked up over night. The girl was later placed on probation, at the request of her mother.

The case is the outcome of the wayward inclinations of a girl, little more than a child, bereft of father through domestic difficulties, and finally through death. She is a daughter of William Geyza, who was found dead on February 4 from asphyxiation. The family came to Newburgh from Danbury several years ago, the father being a hatter.

According to the admissions she made to the recorder, she first met Haver three weeks ago, and has visited him on board the "Martin" at different times since then. Her story was only obtained after a lengthy questioning by the recorder had broken down what at first had been a stout denial of any wrong-doing.

Elopement Was Frustrated.

It was evidently to be an elopement. Anna May had packed most of her clothing in her mother's wicker suitcase, which was found in one of the bedrooms on board the boat. At first Officer Martin was unable to find anyone on board, but finally located Haver inside, up near the bow, endeavoring to hide behind a partition. The girl was discovered some distance away, hiding in a room. She was fully dressed except for her shoes. Haver was without coat or vest. A charge of juvenile delinquency was entered against the girl to hold her at the police station.

Although the watchman or ship-tender as he calls himself, gave his age as 21, he appeared to be much older, perhaps from the fact that he was badly in need of a shave and a general cleaning up. He said he was born in Schenectady. Little is known of Haver, except that he says he is married, and comes from Kingston. He has been employed by the Central Hudson Steamboat Co. about a year.

Swift Amateurs Win Again.

Number 6 School gave the Swift Amateurs another game at the Holy Cross parish house Tuesday afternoon by the score of 30-10. This is the second game played between these teams and both resulted the same, a victory for the Swift Amateurs. The star player of the S. A. team, Van Buren, was not allowed to play until the last five minutes of play and during that time made up for being out the first half part of the game by scoring one foul. The game was well played by both teams, the points being made mostly by Koch and Stoutenburg of the S. A. The game was fast and the passwork and guarding of the Amateurs held No. 6 down to 10 points. In spite of their defeat No. 6 feels confident of winning a game and has challenged the Amateurs to a game next Tuesday afternoon. The game will probably be played at Holy Cross parish house. ### Sewing Bee.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Rondout Presbyterian Church will hold the last of its series of sewing bees in the chapel tomorrow afternoon, March 15, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. The daily layettes the ladies have been making are nearing completion and all the ladies of the congregation are cordially urged to be present and help at the finish. A bountiful supper will be served by the committee in charge. The small amount of ten cents, which is charged does not of course pay for the supper, but goes to swell the sum used for the purchase of sewing materials. Everyone is invited to stay to the prayer service and have a part in it. A large attendance and deep enthusiasm is marking these meetings.

LUCKY STRIKE

LUCKY STRIKE cigarette

WHEN your breakfast toast is just right — buttered piping hot; brown, crisp, delicious — you'll admit that it's a little bit of Heaven on a dark morning.

Keep this agreeable thought in mind as you read about the new Lucky Strike cigarette. Because it's "tied up" with this same good old kitchen stove idea. The tobacco—it's toasted; and what that toasting does to the delicious Burley flavor! My!

There's been a big demand for a cigarette ready-made from Burley tobacco. Last year you had to pour the Burley out of those green, red and blue tins—enough for 35 billion cigarettes.

But until we made this toasting discovery a ready-made Burley cigarette wasn't possible—we couldn't hold the flavor. But now! Well, just try it—Lucky Strike—the real Burley cigarette; the tobacco—it's toasted.

Our men will demonstrate to you how the tobacco is toasted—of many stores!

Ludington's Rough Diamond

By DONALD CHAMBERLAIN.

Edgar Ludington was born—not with a silver, not with a golden, but with a diamond spoon in his mouth. No one knew what his income was, but all knew that it was fabulous. But Ludington was a good deal of a man for all that. He had been graduated at a college which prides itself on its democracy and had resolutely refused to be considered favorably on account of his wealth. He had also made friends of his classmates, irrespective of either his social or financial standing. His chum was the son of a backwoodsman. When Ludington left college he spent a year in New York associating with persons of his own social position, though he himself had descended from ancestors prominent in colonial times, while most of his set were of the newly rich. Indeed, he was about the only young man in New York who was both very rich and of blue blood. He found his time principally occupied in escaping girls who wanted to marry him, and, tiring of this, he went west to become a rancher.

At the end of a couple of years he returned to New York to spend the cold season. He was not forgotten by his associates—rich men are never forgotten—and since he was fond of social doings entered into the season's pleasures. In January he opened one of his country places and invited a party of young fellows and girls to spend a couple of weeks with him there. When they were assembled he said to them:

"I've taken up in the west with a rancher who is a rough diamond. He may not have the ways of the rest of us, and his clothes are certainly not of the latest cut, but I assure you he is a fine fellow whom I am proud to know. I've invited him to be with us, and I trust that you will all treat him as my friend."

When Cuthbert Bradshaw appeared he gave evidence of having roughed it for the greater part of his life. It was not that he was made of coarse clay, for if properly dressed he would have at least looked like a gentleman. He was that he had associated with rough persons so continuously that he had become rough himself. From his first appearance it was evident that none of the guests could stomach him. He might be a rough diamond, but Ludington's friends had never been able to see the spiritual beauties of his rough diamond friends, and they did not propose to put up with Mr. Bradshaw.

The party had not been together twenty-four hours when they began to turn upon their host. The men could not use him, for they had all the money they wanted; the women, any one of whom would have been glad to add his fortune to hers, would have borne with him, but not with his friend, and they felt aggrieved that Ludington should have spoiled an otherwise pleasant house party by bringing Bradshaw into it. Besides, they felt that their skirts were soiled by contact with his unpolished boots.

There would not have been open warfare between Ludington and his guests had he not given as much of his time to Bradshaw as to any of them. And to make matters worse, in proportion to their giving Bradshaw the cold shoulder, Ludington gave him more of his time. At last Ludington became so incensed at the treatment of his favorite that he ignored them a good deal of the time to be himself with Bradshaw.

If Ludington's guests had all the money they wanted there was one thing still to be desired—a foreign title. This was beyond the hope of the men, but not the women, some American girls having paid millions for men from whom they were constrained to secure speedy divorces. What was the house party's surprise to see one morning, under an announcement from London of the death of the Earl of Habbington, that the earl dying childless, the title would fall to his nephew, "Cuthbert Bradshaw, now ranching in New Mexico."

As soon as it was evident that Mr. Bradshaw was a noble lord of high degree all the women of the party about faced and sought an opportunity to do him honor. But he went about among them without taking any notice of them for the few hours he remained in the house and when he went out of it simply raised his hat politely to the group that stood on the porte-cochere to see him off. When he was gone the women vented their spite on Ludington for having deceived them as to Mr. Bradshaw's family connections.

Some declared that it was a frameup on them; that Bradshaw knew better than to wear his ranch clothes among them and make a bore of himself on purpose. There may be some truth in this, but he had certainly been turned loose on the world when very young and had seen some rough usage. Ludington would give his guests no satisfaction about the matter, simply answering that he had concealed nothing and they were as bound to treat Bradshaw, their fellow guest, as well while he was Bradshaw as when he had become the Earl of Habbington.

Anyway, if the Britisher was rough while in America he became suddenly refined in England, and it goes without saying that you can't make a person refined in a hurry.

After his friend's departure Ludington went back to his ranch and has not since been seen in New York.

Surely He Couldn't Have Meant—Justice—"Till let you off this time, but in future keep away from bad company." Satirist—"Thanks, yer honor! You'll never see me here again!"—Judge.

Husbands.

"The majority of husbands complain that their hands are always in their pockets." "They do, do they? Then why— they find there the letters they have forgotten to mail for their wives?"—Baltimore American.

Poetic Theme.

"I read your 'Ode to Milady's Hair'." "Well?" said the poet. "I thought maybe we could hire you to write an advertisement in poetry for our hair goods department. There's where she bought that hair!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Novelty.

Teacher—Why were you not at school yesterday? Tommy—It was my birthday. Teacher—But I don't stay home from school on my birthday. Tommy—Well, I guess you've got used to—New York Times.

Two Edged English.

The Words—Oh, yes, Mrs. Smith, my friends have often spoken to me of you. The Meaning—And you should have heard what they said!—St. Louis Star.

MANY AID THE FASHION SHOW

While the plan to turn the season's fashion show into a benefit for the Women's Auxiliaries of the Kingston City Hospital, Benedictine Sanitarium and Y. M. C. A. was originated by the Van Wagenen Company, which is giving the entertainment, other merchants have generously donated goods or service toward the complete success of the affair and therefore the increased funds for the auxiliaries. The handsome furniture used in the stage setting has been loaned by the Gregory Company. The various sport goods, tennis net and rackets, golf implements, etc., etc., have come from the Charles A. Warren and Harry Carr stores. Burgevin has donated the artistic floral decorations and Muller's orchestra has donated its share of the attractive music. Another very important and valued donation is that offered in the Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing for men, from Cohen's, which will be worn by the men taking part in the fashion show.

The Evening Performance.

Mr. Gildersleeve, appreciating the "attraction" of the fashion show, has added his mite by putting on the screen on Thursday evening before the fashion show at the first performance and after the fashion show at second performance, the Paramount Picture "Out of the Wreck," with Kathryn Williams as the star. This particularly entertaining and appealing movie is running at The Strand Theater in New York city this week, and would have drawn a good house without the fashion show. With the fashion show Mr. Gildersleeve expects to have to hang out his "Standing Room Only" sign on Thursday evening.

The Ideal Kitchen.

The kitchen is the real workshop of the family. Most of the work there has to do with preparing food for the family, cleaning it up and putting it away. The old fashioned kitchens never took into account economy of steps and time, but today this is always done. There is a logical order for the arrangement of the equipment. Things that belong to each process should be together, within the reach of the worker. The icebox, cold pantry, kitchen cabinet, stove and serving table are used together and should be in a close continuous line. This is the food preparation side of the equipment. For the cleaning up of the same economy should be practiced. The sink should be near the china closet or in a butler's pantry, the track should be straight for clearing up. Always have plenty of table room near the sink. A drain board on each side is the best plan, or at least a set of hanging shelves, a hinged shelf and extra table or a wheeled table at the right. If the drain table is porcelain a rubber mat will prevent breakage.—Exchange.

Aluminum and Oxygen.

Aluminum is in many ways a wonderful substance, albeit in the natural world most of it is oxidized and turned to clay. Its avidity for oxygen is one of its most salient characteristics. It is said that one never sees the metal, directly, in air, but always and only through a veil of superficial oxide which forms on its free surface with marvelous rapidity. It is stated that if a fresh surface of aluminum is prepared by scraping with a knife the oxide of the air runs in as fast as the scale is peeled off and keeps close behind the knife blade.

If it were not for this superficial scale of oxide, which acts as a barrier to further action, the metal would burn up or degenerate in air. The large amount of heat developed by thermite, a mixture of powdered aluminum with oxygen giving substances, bears witness to the activity of the oxidizing process when completed.—Washington Star.

Tokyo's Prolific Slums.

No tourist crosses the Sumida river unless it is to visit the great amphitheater for a wrestling match or a chrysanthemum show, yet there is where the real secret of Tokyo's future lies. It is the factory and slum sections of the city, and the population there has increased in the last decade ten times as fast as has the population in the district of Kojimachi, which surrounds the palace.

In the last generation the population of the five greatest industrial and commercial cities in Japan has increased by 314 per cent as against an increase in the whole empire of 15 per cent. The trend in Japan is cityward, and the visitor to Tokyo, seeing the streets crowded with people, does not realize that in the suburbs the growth in population has run from 250 to 500 per cent in the last decade.—Christian Herald.

Argentina's Military System.

Every native or naturalized citizen of Argentina, at home or abroad, on reaching the age of eighteen years must be enrolled. The federal executive power takes charge of this national enrollment, which serves at once as a registration of voters and national defenders. A given individual, if at home, is enrolled in one of the five military districts into which the fourteen states and ten territories of Argentina are divided. If he resides abroad he is enrolled in his consulate, for the government follows him with precision wherever he may wander. With the exception of these consular registrations abroad the general enrollment is entirely in charge of the military authorities, who are counted upon to get more thorough results than a civil census provides.—World's Work.

Self Training Is Best, Says Armour.

In the American Magazine is an article by J. O. Armour entitled "Armour Men Who Got Ahead—and Why." In which Mr. Armour gives his opinion of the qualifications that make for business success.

"One of the truest axioms I know," he says, "is the business saying that 'the best trained man is the self trained man.' It is my belief that no man developed by a formula in a business organization can ever reach the power of one who is put on his own responsibility, knowing that his advancement depends on his own brains, foresight and application.

"By this I do not mean that a business leader should let his men go along blindly. He must always give something of himself. He must teach them the overhead and crawl strokes where they knew only the breast stroke before. But in any office organization the man who has never had to stand squarely on his own feet is never in a position to march ahead."

Work of a Microscope.

One of the newest of astronomical instruments is the blink microscope. The principle involved is similar to that of the moving picture machine. In the latter the film used consists of a series of pictures, each a little different from its predecessor. If these are presented in rapid succession the series is fused into one picture in which the succeeding differences appear as motion. The blink microscope enables one to compare a photograph of a portion of the heavens with another of the same region taken several years later. An ingenious contrivance brings first one then the other plate into view in rapid succession. If in the interval between two exposures a star in the region has changed its position appreciably it will appear to move and can be detected at once. Formerly it was necessary to measure carefully the positions of all the stars on both plates in order to detect those with large proper motions. Such stars are sometimes called "runaways" stars.

Complaint of the Stupid.

It is only stupid people who complain that they are misunderstood. If they were not stupid they would know that there is absolutely no such thing as being misunderstood, and therefore that there is nothing whatsoever to be gained by complaining about it.

Wise people who want to be understood do not spend their time complaining, but in perfecting some means of expressing themselves by which they may reveal to the world about them some slight remnant, at least, of their souls or their minds or their ideas or their discoveries or their eccentricities or whatever it is they want to make known.

When you complain about not being understood the only thing you make clear is that you are a complainer.—Puck.

Coney Mentioned in the Bible.

There are several allusions in the Bible to the coney. The thirtieth chapter, twenty-sixth verse of Proverbs says "The coneys are but a feeble folk, yet they make their house in the rocks." Coneys are yet found on the Lebanon and in the Jordan and Dead Sea valleys. The coney is about the size of the domestic cat, has long hair, a short tail, round ears and chews the cud.

Metal Long in Use.

Tin was known to the Hebrew metal workers as an alloy of other metals as early as the time of Moses. There was no tin in Palestine. Their tin in the time of David was obtained from Tyre and Tyre was supplied by the ships that traded with Tarshish. This tin came from Spain, but doubtless the greater quantity came from the tin districts of Britain.

CHANCE TO SERVE ARMY RECRUITING

War Department Will Welcome operation of All Citizens in Regular Army up to Required Quota.

Those who are interested in reservation can render no more effective service, at present, than by using their utmost influence to recruit the regular army to the strength authorized by law. It not overlook the fact that the regular army, as well as a volunteer army, is composed of volunteers, and that both form a part of the army of the United States. The regular army is already organized, but needs additional men now. A volunteer army, in addition to the regular army, can be organized only under special authority of congress and is not in existence at present. Under the laws in force the conditions of service as to term of enlistment and opportunity for return to civil life after service with the colors are practically equal in the regular army and in a volunteer army.

The regular soldier serves three years with the colors and is then entitled to a furlough to the reserve which relieves him from further active service in time of peace. He is also eligible in time of peace to be furloughed to the reserve after one year's service with the colors if he is reported by his immediate commander as proficient and sufficiently trained, and is serving within the continental limits of the United States. Thus, under normal conditions, the maximum service with the colors in the regular army, at the option of the soldier, is three years and the minimum service with the colors is one year. Under the law, the term of enlistment if the "volunteer" is three years, but these volunteers will be mustered out in a less time if peace is restored or the menace of war ceases. It is unlikely that the minimum time of service with the colors will be less than a year. A man who enlists in the regular army is immediately placed in training under competent instructors and under officers who know how to care for him, and how to teach him his military duties in the shortest possible time.

The First Regiment of Infantry was organized 123 years ago. The Second Infantry was organized in 1791; the Third and Fourth Regiments of Infantry in 1792; the Fifth and Sixth Regiments of Infantry in 1798; the Seventh Infantry in 1815;
the Eighth Infantry in 1838; the Ninth and Tenth Regiments of Infantry in 1855; the Infantry Regiments numbered from Eleven to Twenty-three inclusive, were organized in May, 1861. All these Infantry Regiments as well as those organized since the Civil War, are organizations in which anyone may proudly serve. Nearly all of them now need from 200 to 400 additional men.

All able bodied male citizens under 35 years of age who desire to prepare themselves for the military service in the national defense, and who are not already in the service, may for support, may be safely advised to enlist at once in the regular army—the great military training school of the nation and the backbone of the first line of land defense.

Application for enlistment may be made to any postmaster of the third or fourth class, or at recruiting office.

Special assistance in obtaining men now needed for the regular army can be given by any patriotic society or association.

By encouraging qualified men to enlist at once.

By giving information to the best recruiting officer for the army to the names and addresses of good men who are likely to

DROWNED LANDS CASE CONTINUED

The action brought by Augustus Geiger against Dwight Divine of Ellenville was continued at the opening of court this morning. The morning was taken up by a number of witnesses called by the plaintiff and all testified as to the amount of water which they had seen on the land in the neighborhood of the Geiger farm, prior to the erection of the new dam and also to the amount of water following the erection of the dam by Mr. Divine.

Ambrose Harris, 74 years old, and a resident in the neighborhood of the "drowned lands" since 1861, proved to be one of the most interesting witnesses called. He has always been a farmer in the neighborhood and has resided on his present farm since 1880. Never in his life had he seen so much water on the Geiger premises as since the erection of the new dam.

At this point Mr. Van Etten asked him if he had ever seen water in the vicinity as shown on a photograph and Mr. Harris after explaining that he had left his glasses home took up the photograph and examined it. He said he had often seen water as high since the erection of the new dam but never before.

As Mr. Harris was experiencing difficulty in seeing the details of the photograph Mr. Van Etten suggested that, as Judge Clearwater was the only man present anywhere near Mr. Harris's age the judge loan him his glasses to Mr. Harris.

Judge Clearwater consented to do this explaining that the addition of the glasses added dignity to the wearer, they being of the big tortoise shell type. Mr. Harris after putting them on seemed surprised and quiet. He announced that he could not see much better and that they were not like his own glasses. Judge Clearwater suggested that Mr. Harris smile, as "a smile would help matters."

"What kind of a smile do you mean?" asked Justice Rudd and a general smile passed around the court room. During the remainder of the time Mr. Harris remained on the stand he continued to wear the judge's glasses although Mr. Van Etten informed him that he need not wear them in order to see the attorneys. Perhaps the view obtained through Judge Clearwater's glasses gave the witness a lawyer's view of the case. At any rate he continued to wear them.

The case was continued this afternoon with witnesses principally old residents of the neighborhood who can remember the height of the water impounded by the old dam before the erection of the present structure by Mr. Divine.

When Mr. Harris first knew the Geiger farm the house was constructed of logs and the farm land in the vicinity was mostly covered with woods.

Case No. 54, The H. S. Crispell Company against Emma L. Simpson, action for goods sold and delivered, was announced settled and the assault case of William Brown against Jacob Fuchs was also announced settled and taken from the calendar.

Bees and Fruit.

An agricultural society of Florence, Italy, has recently carried out a thorough investigation of the alleged injury of fruit by bees and has completely exonerated the latter. Bees are unable to perforate the skin of the fruit, and it is only incidentally that they suck the juices of fruits injured by other natural causes. The damage sometimes attributed to these insects is due to poultry, wild birds, wind and hail, and even more frequently to hornets, wasps, vine moths and other insects. Instead of being harmful to orchards and vineyards, bees perform the useful service of effecting the cross pollination of flowers, and hence the setting of fruit as well as the destruction of damaged fruits (especially grapes) by sucking the juice and pulp and thus preventing fermentation and rot extending to sound individuals. The orchards and vineyards frequented by bees give the most constant crops.—Scientific American.

Idolatry as it is.

After months spent in idolatrous lands I have been unable to see much real worship in heathen shrines. The educated worship with their tongues in their cheeks and the ignorant with their hearts in their mouths. But the amount of real worship that exists in heathen temples is very small.

Sometimes a bereaved mother will enter the temple and draw from her limbo the tiny bit of a departed little one and tie it to the statue of Jizo, the god of motherhood. Sometimes an old man or woman almost blind will enter the temple and rub the eyes of a wooden god and then rub his own in the hope that eternal darkness may not close in on his frightened soul. In some places Buddhist services are as dignified, as well attended and as helpful as our own. In Hakodate I attended a Buddhist preaching service that smacked less of idolatry and more of morals than some ceremonies in our cruciform chapels.—Christian Herald.

The Arabic Language.

Though the Arabs number less than the population of London, their language is one of the most widely spoken and influential in the world, for it is the language of the Koran. Seventy millions of people in Asia and north Africa speak some form of Arabic as their vernacular, and quite as many more know something of the language from the Koran, which in the original is a text book in the day schools of the Mohammedans from Turkey to Afghanistan and New Guinea. Nor is Arabic unworthy of this extensive use. Renan, after expressing his surprise that such a language should spring from the desert regions of Arabia and reach perfection in nomadic camps, declares that it surpasses all its sister Semitic languages in richness of vocabulary, delicacy of expression and the logic of its grammatical construction.—London Chronicle.

GOOD ROADS IN NATION'S FORESTS

Uncle Sam Will Open Up New Public Playgrounds.

A SCENIC WONDERLAND

The National Forests Number 150 and Cover an Area of About 182,000,000 Acres—These Are to Be Made Accessible by an Appropriation of $10,000,000.

Uncle Sam is preparing to open up a new public playground to the people of the United States.

The national forests—150 of them, covering an area of about 182,000,000 acres—are to be made accessible by the expenditure of the recent appropriation by congress of $10,000,000 for roads through these hitherto little known sections. A million dollars a year is to be spent by the forest service for the next ten years in this work, and, inasmuch as the states and counties will contribute a like amount, government officials figure that approximately 6,000 miles of new road will be constructed during the life of the appropriation.

This mileage will not only make it possible for travelers to penetrate to the heart of the virgin woods and enjoy scenic pleasures which have formerly been inaccessible, but it will form a species of insurance against forest fires which has been almost entirely lacking in the past, in addition to rendering far more habitable the hot and otherwise disagreeable sections.

A FOREST ROAD.

visions lying on the outskirts of the forests, districts from which the residents now have to travel scores of miles to secure relief from the heat.

The forest service had been trying for years to obtain from congress an appropriation which would enable them to construct these much needed roads, but the legislation always failed. The bill, however, was finally passed, and last summer the service was notified that the money was available for the needs of the wooded sections set aside by the government for the use of the people.

"The $10,000,000 appropriation, carried as a part of the $35,000,000 good roads bill," said Chief Forester Henry S. Graves in discussing the matter recently, "will mean a great deal not only to the forests and the residents of the adjacent country, but to the people of the United States as a whole. It will mean that we will be able to construct about five times as many miles of road per year as formerly, that the interior of the forests, containing some of the most wonderful natural scenery on the continent, will be opened to easy automobile travel; that the forest rangers will be enabled to fight the costly forest fires with far greater ease than formerly and that the residents of nearby low sections, who formerly had no relief from the heat of summer, will now be able to enjoy the coolness of the woods near by instead of traveling many miles to some more accessible spot.

Little Sammy Dresser

"Well, I like that," exclaimed Sam Dresser as he opened and read a letter left by the postman on his morning round.

The letter referred to was addressed to Samuel E. Dresser. Sam had no recollection of it. He noticed that his name, William Dresser, had died and left a son, Samuel, six years old. William Dresser had provided in his will that this boy, having no mother, should go to live with his cousin, Samuel E. Dresser, who was to be his guardian. In case Mr. Dresser declined the charge, then Miss Amelia Wilkins, a distant relative, was to take his place. The writer had no knowledge of Miss Wilkins except that the testator had attached to the will her photograph, with her address written on the back. This he looked at.

Dresser looked at the photograph and fell in love with it. It may seem singular that a man should fall in love with a photograph. But why not? This girl looked at him as if out of a pair of honest, merry eyes that seemed to look into his. "You are my fate, and I will love you forever." It is difficult for some persons while looking at pictures to remember that the pictures are mere photographs. One can imagine a man falling in love with a woman on the screen. Is it much more to fall in love with a single photograph of her?

Anyway, Miss Wilkins in the photograph looked at Dresser in a way that made him long to meet her. The letter had evidently been delivered to the wrong dresser. Sam concluded that he would try to find the right one in such Miss Wilkins. He wrote her a note stating the case as it was, but told it up and wrote another in the name of the orphan, stating that his father had died and left him to the care of "Uncle Sam," but Uncle Sam wouldn't have him, so, according to the will, he was to go to Cousin Amelia. Back came a reply stating that Uncle Sam was a hard-hearted wretch and Sammie must come to Cousin Amelia. She would take care of him and love him dearly.

"All of which means," said Sam to himself, "that I will be glad to take care of her and love her dearly."

The photograph did not represent a girl over seventeen or eighteen, and Sam was only nineteen. What did the camp do but dress himself up in knickerbockers and a short coat and taking a carriage, drive up to Miss Wilkins' house. There he told the maid who admitted him to tell Cousin Amelia that he was Sammie Dresser.

When Amelia Wilkins came downstairs to greet her cousin she was somewhat astonished to see an overgrown boy who looked too old for his clothes. Her first thought was "What shall I do with him?" She received him as kindly as possible, then, going upstairs, consulted an aunt with whom she lived, for Amelia, too, was an orphan, and the two sat down to the problem of whether to turn out little Sammie Dresser to the mercies of the world or take charge of him.

Upon the advice of her aunt, Amelia returned to Sammie and told him that she had supposed him to be a child, but, seeing that he was old enough to take care of himself, she did not think it would be proper for her to adopt him. Sam replied that he had been thinking there must be some mistake.

Sam departed, leaving her the letter which had induced him to call upon her. In the course of a week he called in propria persona. When Miss Wilkins looked at him she was as much astonished as she was when he called on her before.

"You find me changed, don't you?" said Sam innocently and in his own natural deep voice. He had used a falsetto before. "My father kept me back, treating me as a child. You made me see how much behind my age I was. When I left you I resolved to be a man."

Miss Wilkins was so puzzled that for awhile she did not know what to do or say, but Dresser looked so proud of himself for throwing off the coddling influences which had kept him back that she gradually became accustomed to the change, and Sam spent a very happy evening with her.

When Dresser departed he was cordially invited to call again. Before doing so he sent a basket of cut flowers to Miss Wilkins with a note confessing the fact that when her photograph had fallen into his hands he had been so bewitched by it that he could not resist the temptation to use the mistake that had been made to make her acquaintance. He threw himself on her mercy.

Miss Wilkins was very merciful. Indeed, she had a keen eye for the ludicrous and was very thoughtful over her admirer's attempt to personate a small boy. Sam followed up the flowers with a call and an invitation to dine with him in the park. Whether it was the absurdity of his act or the course that led him to it is not known, but it is quite likely that it was the latter. Sam was a fine fellow, and a woman is not likely to spurn devotion. At any rate, Miss Wilkins consented to become Mrs. Dresser.

One day the husband and wife were strolling in the park when a little boy rolling a hoop ran against them. Among other questions, they asked him his name.

"I'm Sammie Dresser," was his reply. Both Sam and Amelia burst into a laugh. Not hearing from Sam or Amelia, the lawyer who had written to Sam had adopted the boy.

Old English Physicians.

The England of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was a rich field for physicians, and their influence was extended in many directions. Some were very serious-minded persons who did much to advance medical science; others were famed for their adroit ways of amassing wealth. If England has produced Doctor Arbutnot, it has also had such practitioners as graft Hans Sloane, who grafted at his bedside patients instead of flatterers.

"An Eye for an Eye."

"Lex talionis" means the law of retaliation. It provided that the punishment should be the same in kind as the crime. Thus we have the expressions, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." Many other expressions like these are found in the Bible and elsewhere.

Mining in Lhasa.

The operation of mining as known to the early Egyptians are given in the twenty-eighth chapter of Job. The description is highly poetical. In Egypt the mines for gold were worked by groups of captives in fetters. The rocks were broken by fire, after which picks and chisels were used. Miners were quite naked, as are negroes of today who work in the gold mines of South Africa.

Potatoes Cooked in Skins.

Approximately 20 per cent of each potato is in the process. The loss includes much and sometimes all of the nutritious part of the tuber containing the important salts. Potatoes that are boiled baked in their skins lose practically none of their food value.

Rebelle Tibetan Building.

"The building in Lhasa (Tibet) that is the most imposing is the Potala, which is a palace and a temple. It is a palace built on a hill—that is, a hill of its massive walls, its terraces, its bastions stretch upward from the base of the crest as if the great building were merely a foundation stone for the city above it."

This church has been opened for services since December 6, 1914, but no Christian Science Church can be dedicated until it holds its church edifice free of all debt. There will be two services Sunday, one as usual at 11 a. m. and an evening service at 7:30. The public is cordially invited to be present at one or both services.

Snapping It Back.

"This town would be all right if there were not so many fools in it," snarled the Kansas City drummer whose orders had not been as plentiful as he felt that he deserved. "But, on the other hand, Mr. Putt, if there weren't any fools here probably you wouldn't sell any goods at all," replied the landlord of the Petunia tavern, who was filled with local pride.—Kansas City Star.

Allusion Distinctly Personal.

"The trouble with you, sir, is—if you will pardon me for saying so—that you think nobody is good enough for your daughter." "Yes, sir, and that is where we differ so radically. You appear to think anybody is."—Life.

Card of Thanks.

BLONDES, 26

For a second time the old theory that light-haired folks are naturally endowed with better faculties than their brethren with dark foliage was given a solar plexus blow by the brunette girls of the high school on Tuesday afternoon when they subdued at basketball an aggregation of blonde lassies by a score of 35-26, a repetition of a feat accomplished some weeks back.

Because of the presence of the whole varsity team in either of the two contesting factions the game was more scientific than the contests usually hashed out to the spectators by pick-up teams in the school. The result was probably due to an overbalancing of talent on the part of the brunettes whose line-up contained girls all of whom have played with the varsity while the blondes had a few of less experience in their midst.

The brunettes got away to a good start and led at half time, 19-12. The second chapter was closer, the blondes scoring 14 point and their opponents 16 points.

Miss Hurley of the blondes got in the most points of any, a total of 13, her teammate, Miss Safford pressing her close with 11. For the brunettes Miss Schmid, Miss Bell, Miss Joslovitz and Miss Wood starred in the scoring, though every one of both teams played well. The line-up was as follows:

TOOK TRIP OVER
OVERLAND PLANT

Hundreds See Automobiles in the Making in Motion Picture Film—Some Interesting Facts About Big Motor Industry in Toledo.

True to his promise, George J. Schryver, local distributor for the Overland and Willys-Knight automobiles, filled the big auditorium of the opera house on Tuesday afternoon, and long before 4:30, when the activities were scheduled to begin, Manager Gildersleeve had been compelled to dust off his "Standing Room Only" sign and hang it outside the doorway. As soon as the regular pictures had been shown at the opera house Mr. Schryver's guests began to arrive and when the first picture was flashed on the screen every seat in the house was filled and many people were compelled to stand.

GEORGE J. SCHRYVER.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Schryver, the film of the big Overland plant was brought to Kingston and the making of this car was shown from the time the ore is brought to the factory until the machine is aboard the freight car and on its way to the new owner. A motion picture showing the steps of manufacture not only gave an idea of the great number of cars turned out by the company but was very educational even to people who are not particularly interested in motor cars or their construction. The trip began in the forging room, where giant automatic machines shape the parts from bars of red hot iron and from the forging and stamping of parts the process of manufacturing advanced to the assembling room and finally what began as a bar of steel left the factory as a finished car driven from the building under its own power. In the Overland factory at Toledo human labor has been done away with by the adoption of labor saving machinery to such an extent that although over 1,000 cars are turned out daily but 15,000 men are employed, and it is through this quantity production aided by automatic machinery that the quality car is produced at so small a cost.

After a trip through the manufacturing plant had been completed a trip outside the big factory covering 13 acres of ground began.

After the film had been shown many of the audience stopped outside the opera house where Mr. Schryver had a full line of machines parked for inspection. The Overland and Willys-Knight show a complete line of both four and six cylinder cars and include the Knight sleeve-type of motor. The Overland people were the first makers of medium priced cars to adopt this wonderful motor and until they took up the manufacture of high priced cars, principally of foreign make, were the only ones using this type of engine.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, March 14.—Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in their rooms in Hutten's Hall on Broadway.

Mrs. G. P. Griffin of Hamilton street is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Grant Robinson, in Malden.

The Brotherhood of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet at the chapel this evening after the business session. A social hour will be spent; games played and refreshments served. A pleasant evening awaits the gentlemen of the Brotherhood.

Emil Closs of Brooklyn, N. Y., will give a high class entertainment Friday evening, March 23, at Pythian Hall, at 8 o'clock, consisting of unique novelties, songs, stories, pantomime and costumed character impersonations; also his famous Swiss hand bells and popular and classical selections. Mr. Closs comes to Port Ewen very highly recommended, having given his impersonations, etc., at the St. James Methodist Church at Kingston, and too much praise cannot be given this gentleman that possesses such wonderful musical talent. This entertainment is given under the auspices of the Dorcas Society and Brotherhood of the Reformed Church and tickets can be procured from members of the societies. Adults 20 cents, children under 12 years 15 cents.

Little Miss Mabel Olsen, who has spent several months with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Leichling, on Green street, left Tuesday morning for her home at Rochester, Minnesota. She was unaccompanied but braved the journey alone. Her many friends in this village hope for a safe journey.

ECONOMIC WAR IS MORE IMPORTANT

Millard David Gives His Views on Farmers, Legislation and Markets Together With Approval of Dairy-men's League and Its Objects.

52 William street,
March 13, 1917.

To the Editor of the Kingston Freeman:
Dear Sir:—

We are living in interesting times. In this time of stress, when our minds are occupied with the great struggle in Europe, it is well for us not to overlook the fact that there is another battle going on in our own state the economic results of which may be as far reaching as any battle between armies.

I think it is agreed on all sides, that if a country is to lastingly succeed, it must have on its land a class of independent, satisfied farmers owning medium sized farms; and the drift in our state for the past fifty years has been away from the farms and into the cities, so that we find today that the young men of our farms are leaving and those that remain are dissatisfied and have to work harder for a dollar than any other class of labor in this country. One direct consequence of these conditions is the present scarcity and high price of food.

But the principal reasons for this state of things seems to be that there has grown up, little by little, a mass of dealers through whose hands food must pass between the time it is raised on the farm and when it finally reaches the table of the consumer, who take a major proportion of the final price of the food, so that the farmer has left at most, in the majority of cases, only 35 cents of the consumer's dollar. Of course a farmer cannot be satisfied under these conditions, and, of course, the tendency will be for them to go where they can make more and easier money.

Now, then, our Empire State has been trying to rectify this matter, and some years ago it established a Department of Foods and Markets with John J. Dillon as its commissioner. He has been the directing force by which two great battles have been fought. First for the producers of apples. A year ago last fall by his advocating a scheme by which they were sold directly at the farm, millions of dollars were saved to the apple growers of the state. Then last spring, through his cooperation and help, the Dairy-men's League of this and adjoining states waged their successful battle for an increase in the price of milk to the producer and won it. In this business things were in a bad way. The number of cows has been decreasing at the rate of 17,000 per year in this state and from the forging and stamping of parts the process of manufacturing advanced to the assembling room and finally what began as a bar of steel left the factory as a finished car driven from the building under its own power.

In the Overland factory at Toledo human labor has been done away with by the adoption of labor saving machinery to such an extent that although over 1,000 cars are turned out daily but 15,000 men are employed, and it is through this quantity production aided by automatic machinery that the quality car is produced at so small a cost.

After a trip through the manufacturing plant had been completed a trip outside the big factory covering 13 acres of ground began.

After the film had been shown many of the audience stopped outside the opera house where Mr. Schryver had a full line of machines parked for inspection. The Overland and Willys-Knight show a complete line of both four and six cylinder cars and include the Knight sleeve-type of motor. The Overland people were the first makers of medium priced cars to adopt this wonderful motor and until they took up the manufacture of high priced cars, principally of foreign make, were the only ones using this type of engine.

Mrs. G. P. Griffin of Hamilton street is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Grant Robinson, in Malden.

The Brotherhood of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet at the chapel this evening after the business session. A social hour will be spent; games played and refreshments served. A pleasant evening awaits the gentlemen of the Brotherhood.

Emil Closs of Brooklyn, N. Y., will give a high class entertainment Friday evening, March 23, at Pythian Hall, at 8 o'clock, consisting of unique novelties, songs, stories, pantomime and costumed character impersonations; also his famous Swiss hand bells and popular and classical selections. Mr. Closs comes to Port Ewen very highly recommended, having given his impersonations, etc., at the St. James Methodist Church at Kingston, and too much praise cannot be given this gentleman that possesses such wonderful musical talent. This entertainment is given under the auspices of the Dorcas Society and Brotherhood of the Reformed Church and tickets can be procured from members of the societies. Adults 20 cents, children under 12 years 15 cents.

Little Miss Mabel Olsen, who has spent several months with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Leichling, on Green street, left Tuesday morning for her home at Rochester, Minnesota. She was unaccompanied but braved the journey alone. Her many friends in this village hope for a safe journey.

American Mineral Oil

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food.

The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it. For the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

BEICHERT MADE LIFE MISERABLE

For His Parents on Susan Street, and Was Arrested on Complaint of his Father—Jailed for Four Months.

William Beichert of Susan street, who has been in court a number of times before, was arraigned again this morning before Recorder Lang on the same old charge of getting drunk and misusing his parents, who are respected residents. In fact, Beichert has been brought to court a number of times on the complaint of his parents and each time he promises to behave himself and honor his father and mother. As soon as he gets drunk, however, he forgets his promise and proceeds to make life miserable.

This morning Beichert, who is 35 years old, pleaded hard with the court to be lenient and give him another chance and he would leave town. He has made those promises before and Recorder Lang turned a deaf ear to his pleas and sentenced Beichert to four months in the county jail.

The son when he found that the court would not listen to his pleas called his father to one side and endeavored to have him withdraw the charge but the father had evidently put up with more than he could stand from the son for he refused and left the court room.

Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

A meeting of the pastor and deacons to receive new members will be held at the church this Thursday evening at seven o'clock. All who intend to unite with the church at this season of the year are asked to be present then.

The prayer meeting will be held on Thursday evening at half past seven. The topic will be, "A More Excellent Way."

On Friday evening at eight o'clock "A Pageant of the Nations" will be given in the church. It will be a representation of the missionary work in different nations of the world, and nearly a hundred people will take part, all in costume.

It will be in every way a unique entertainment, with music, speaking and action. The committee under the direction of Mrs. C. K. Moulton, have been working very hard to make it a success. The proceeds will be used entirely for missionary work.

Took Her Down a Peg.

One of the anecdotes in Gamaliel Bradford's "Portraits of Women" describes an encounter between George Ticknor, the Boston publisher, and Lady Holland. "I understand, Mr. Ticknor," said the haughty ruler of London society, "that New England was originally settled by convicts." "I was not aware of that," Ticknor replied promptly, "but I know that some of the Vassals, your ancestors, were early settlers in Massachusetts."

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

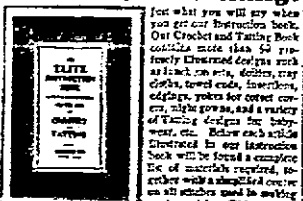

Boys' Middy Suit.

1764—This design is a popular style, good for wash and woolen goods. It makes a very comfortable school and play suit. ## AWAITS ACTION OF SUPERVISORS

Health Board Decides Not to Expend $700 Equipping Laboratory in City Hall Until It Is Seen Whether Supervisors Engage a Bacteriologist.

As the board of supervisors of Ulster county will meet shortly the board of health at the regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening decided not to spend $700 in fitting up a laboratory on the top floor of the city hall for testing milk until it was seen whether the supervisors engaged a bacteriologist and reopened the county laboratory on John street, or not.

At the last meeting of the health board a committee consisting of Charles L. McBride, Dr. E. E. Norwood and Frank Kaufman were appointed to investigate whether the county laboratory could be secured for milk tests or whether it would be feasible to open a laboratory in the city hall. This committee submitted a report at the meeting stating that at the time the committee was appointed it was generally understood that there was little prospect of the county laboratory being in operation in the near future and so there was only discussed in the board meeting two propositions, namely, the feasibility of equipping a small laboratory to do milk work or the possibility of renting the county laboratory for that purpose, and it was along these lines the committee worked.

A third proposition was later offered the committee and is embodied in the report.

Would Cost $700.
The first proposition of equipping a laboratory was investigated. Essential equipment was carefully itemized and estimates of cost made. In round numbers it amounted to $700.

County Laboratory Prospects.
On consultation with the chairman of the laboratory committee appointed by the board of supervisors we learned that there were prospects of the laboratory being opened. Further, the committee would not have authority to rent the laboratory and to consider such a matter would constitute a meeting of the board of supervisors.

The Third Proposition.
The third proposition was offered to the committee by several doctors of the Ulster County Medical Society. Briefly it was this. If the health board would enter into an agreement to pay a flat sum to the bacteriologist of the county laboratory this sum to pay for all of the work which the board might desire done the Ulster County Medical Society would appropriate a sum so that the bacteriologist would be assured of enough pay to meet the running expenses of the laboratory.

Milk Work on Fee Basis.
In connection with this third proposition the fact must not be lost sight of that there is a resolution of the board of supervisors which places all milk work of health board on a fee basis, namely $2 each for chemical and bacteriological examination.

Whether in view of the action of the board of supervisors it will be possible to enter into an agreement with the bacteriologist with the sanction or permission of the supervisors is problematical at the time this report is written.

Without Comment.
The injection of the third proposition which is along lines not outlined in the original instructions given to your committee is such that your committee does not do other than refer the report for your consideration without comment.

Report Filed.
The report was read and filed. It was brought out by Commissioner McBride that on the fee basis of making milk examinations it had cost this board about $800 a year when it was done at the county laboratory.

What Will Supervisors Do?
Dr. Norwood thought that if the supervisors engaged anyone it would likely be Dr. Van Winkle. It had been expected that when the matter came up the last time that something definite would be done, but the supervisors had adjourned without appointing a bacteriologist. What the supervisors will do at the next meeting is of course unknown.

Mayor Canfield Presided.
Mayor Canfield presided at the meeting with Commissioners Michael McBride, Kaufman and Norwood present. Routine matters were discussed.

The reports of the officers of the board were received and filed. They read as follows:

TWO THIEVES ARE SENT TO ALBANY

Clever Work of Sergeant Phinney Resulted in Arrest of Edward Bradford and Howard Trought—Brief Resume of Their Records.

Through the clever work of Sergeant Phinney on Tuesday, Edward Bradford and Howard Trought were rounded up on a charge of stealing iron from the property of the Newark Lime and Cement Company in Ponchokkie and selling it to a junk dealer. This morning both men were arraigned before Recorder Lang and pleaded guilty and were sentenced to four months each in the Albany penitentiary.

"Won't you please be lenient?" pleaded one of them as the court imposed sentence.
"I am lenient" replied Recorder Lang "I had intended to make it six months each" and he waved to Sergeant Phinney to lead them out.

Both men have quite a record. Trought, who is 33 years old, is now out on parole from Dannemora, where he had been sentenced by Judge Jenkins to serve a term for breaking into a store in Port Jervis some time ago. It is likely that after he completes his term in the Albany pen that he will be taken back to Dannemora to serve out his term.
Bradford has also been in trouble. He gave his age to the police as 22 years. Last summer he was arrested before Recorder Lang on the charge of moving into a house on Third Avenue without the owner's knowledge or consent. It developed at that time that the agent of the property had some business in North front on one day and happened to pass the house and was astonished to find it occupied. He investigated and found that Bradford had moved his family into the house and refused to vacate. Finally the charge was dropped when the Bradfords vacated the premises. While they occupied the house they received a visit from the stork.
Bradford is also said to have served a month in the county jail on a charge of stealing chickens.

SUFFRAGE SCHOOL THURSDAY.

Sessions in Supervisors' Rooms to Extend to Saturday.

Mrs. Gordon Norris of Staatsburg, chairman of the 10th Suffrage Campaign District, will open the Kingston Suffrage School in the supervisors' room of the court house tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The school will continue until the end of the week with sessions in the afternoon and evenings.

Mr. John Blair, chairman of the publicity section of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, will be present at the opening session to talk on methods of securing publicity for the 1917 campaign. Mrs. Blair has managed two great suffrage balls in New York city, besides a "suffrage" baseball game and various other stunts. Miss Elinor Byrns, the young New York lawyer, who is to conduct the school will explain what the school must accomplish, and also sketch the history of manhood suffrage in England and the United States. The program for the other sessions is as follows:

Thursday Evening—
8:45—The history of woman suffrage.
9:45—Questions and general discussion.
9:50—Talk on how to speak in public.
Friday Afternoon—
2:30-3:15—Three minute speeches by class members on suffrage.
3:15-3:30—Brief criticisms of the speeches.
3:30-1:30—Arguments for suffrage.
Friday Evening—
8:45—Watchers' school.
9:10—Campaign methods.
Saturday Afternoon—
2:30-3:30—Address by Mrs. Wm. G. Mitchell, suffrage grange chairman of the state.
3:40-4:30—Organization of street and mass meetings.
Saturday Evening—
8:45—Talk on the legal status of women.
9:10—Talk on press work.

Presbyterian Penny Supper.
The ladies' Aid of the First Presbyterian Church are planning for a unique entertainment which at this time of high cost of living will prove profitable as well as entertaining—a penny supper—consisting of a fine meal and too they are to have a sale of articles from the parcels post; not from the "dead letter office." This sale and supper is scheduled for the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, March 28.

"Tyrants Transformed Into Skunks"

The contemptible plan of malicious slander to injure the sale of CAMEL cigarettes has been exposed. Such an insult to the intelligence of Mr. Jobber, Mr. Dealer and Mr. Smoker has been rightfully resented. That great force of justice and fairness that the average man always upholds still prevails.

Some say those responsible for this malicious slander once forced their way by biting and clawing the trade. Since having their teeth and claws pulled out, and realizing their inability to longer continue biting and scratching, they put on gum shoes, transformed themselves from tyrants into skunks, and are fighting by using their fetid odor to destroy a great brand which has won the confidence of the public.

Now that the object of these low-down tactics of lying to injure the sale of CAMEL cigarettes is known to the trade and consumer, it is acting like a boomerang, and the hides of these skunks, as they are called by some, are now being pierced by their own malicious slander.

We know from facts in our possession whose employees are circulating the damaging falsehoods about CAMEL cigarettes.

Here's Why They Are Doing It

The purity and delightfulness of CAMEL cigarettes have made them the largest selling brand of cigarettes in the world. We sold over four billions more CAMELS in the year 1916 than we sold in the year 1915. Think of that wonderful increase—a gain of four billions in one year! We have already sold over one billion more CAMELS during 1917 than we sold for the corresponding period of 1916. These record-breaking increases were made unassisted by coupons or premiums—standing alone on purity and delightfulness. Our increase alone in the sale of CAMEL cigarettes is more than the total sales of any other brand of cigarettes for the period stated.

What more positive testimonial of the purity and delightfulness of CAMEL cigarettes could be furnished than this tremendous and steady increase in their sales? Smokers will not permit themselves to be prejudiced against CAMEL cigarettes, to give up a brand that has brought them so much pleasure, now that they know that only envy and jealousy were the foundation for the malicious falsehoods put into circulation for the purpose of injuring the sale of CAMEL cigarettes.

CAMEL cigarettes are pure and they are delightful. We invite comparison with any cigarette in the world, at any price, and welcome fair and aboveboard competition from any manufacturer.

No change in price, quality, or size of package.

HEALTH AND WEALTH.

Health is the foundation of the world's prosperity. Wealth is the result of the tools of health. A strong, enduring body is good capital to begin business with. A sound mind and good judgment add greatly to its value. Possessed of these, a man may earn a living and enjoy it when earned.

Japanese bread is shaped somewhat like a stick of bamboo, being sold in strings.

The great man expects everything of himself; the small man expects everything of others.

A WASTED LIFE.

A man can have no greater delusion than that he can spend the best years of his life coining all his energies into money, neglecting his home, sacrificing friendships and everything else really worth while for money and yet find happiness at the end. There is never happiness in such a selfish life.

"What's your missus kicking about?" inquired the housewife from next door.

"This is her night out, but I told her I had an engagement myself."—Kansas City Journal.

POWER OF FAITH.

Faith is not born for days of sunshine only. Faith does not find her trust and greatest power when the sunshine appears. It is the attribute of faith to believe in good in spite of evil; it is the attribute of faith to believe in the light although she is enveloped by the darkness.

One of the chief cold storage products of Italy is mulberry leaves, which feed the silkworms.

Organs were known before the time of Christ and were used in religious services early in the Christian era.

IMAGINATION.

A wise imagination is one of the best aids for living, and in no way is it likely to be more useful than in anticipating regrets. All regrets may be avoided if only we will think ahead far enough and clearly enough. "If I had only known!" we cry. But we might have known.

"What makes you so hoarse, Rob?" "I was up the best part of the night singing to the baby, trying to make him stop crying."

"Then why didn't you stop singing?"—Exchange.

CITY STREET IS NOT A BEDROOM

Although Frank Blown of Gage Street Evidently Thought It Was and Was Found Undressing on O'Neil Street by Officer Ryan.

While Policeman Ryan was patrolling O'Neil street about 10:30 o'clock Tuesday evening he rubbed his eyes in surprise as he ran across a man standing in the street in a decreed state of undress. The officer promptly placed him under arrest and after the man had returned his pants escorted him to the police headquarters where he gave his name as Frank Blown and his home on Gage street.

This morning Mr. Blown was arraigned before Recorder Lang and related a tale of having drunk a few beers too many. He said that he had a reason for undressing and explained in a whisper to the court what that reason was.

In reply to questions by the court Blown, who is a middle aged German, explained that he had three or four beers that day and "I was putty drunk," he added. He also explained that too much beer had made him sick. He also earnestly explained that he was not in the habit of drinking every day as "If I have no money I can't drink," said he. He pleaded for another chance and said he had a job waiting for him in Woodstock.

As he had never been in trouble before Recorder Lang was lenient and discharged him.

Nerves and Work.
The man with a weak heart or with shaky nerves is apt to become distracted if engaged on work that is full of quick surprises or excitement. The excitement itself saps his strength, interferes with his own safety and adds to the risk of hurting others, but there is much good and remunerative work that can be done by such a man. I would therefore try to steer him into a quiet occupation and would show him how to remedy his weakness or at least how to avoid getting worse.—M. W. Alexander in Industrial Management.

Dead Men's Teeth.
Before artificial teeth were created deficiencies had to be made good by the real article, so body snatchers ravaged the cemeteries at night, breaking up the jaws of the dead to extract their teeth to sell to dentists for insertion in live men's mouths. "An army of these ghouls followed Wellington's army. They were licensed as snailers, but once night fell out came their nippers, and they prowled over the battlefield extracting the teeth of the dead or dying.—London Mail.

Inexpensive Lighting.
Many of the peasant class in Spain make use of the bark of the cork-oak to light their cottages at night. The bark is placed in a kettle, from which protrudes a spout, and when it is hot enough it gives off a gas which burns with considerable brilliancy. The lighting is not expensive, and the peasant is careful to save the corked cork refuse, for he can sell it, as it is known commercially as "Spanish black," one of the intensest black-brown known among pigments.—London Standard.

Ruskin's Boyhood.
Ruskin's mother was an extraordinary woman. She was an evangelical Puritan of the strictest type and held strong views even on the sinfulness of toys. An aunt once bought the boy a Punch and Judy, but his mother immediately put it away, and he never saw it again. "My parents," Ruskin once said, "debarred me from all pleasures but walking. ### YOUNG JAKE NEXT CHAMPION Freely Predicted That Schaefer, Jr., Will Some Day Succeed Hoppe, the Incomparable.

"A chip off the old block." This is the expression currently used by billiard followers in their talks about "Young" Jake Schaefer, star ball-line player.

"Young" Jake is only a boy with boyish ideals, but he has perfected his style of play to such an extent during the last few months that the old-timers of the green cloth see in him a duplicate of his father, the late "Wizard" Schaefer, who reigned supreme in the billiard world before the advent of Hoppe. Like his accomplished parent, Young Jake is developing a wonderful stroke and under the tutelage of Willie Hoppe is absorbing knowledge rapidly. It is freely predicted that Schaefer will be the next champion, but that is still a long time off, as Hoppe is good enough to retain the title for a number of years.

POPULARITY OF HORSE RACES

Past Year Was One of Most Brilliant in History of Trotting Turf—Many Records Broken.

In many respects the past year was one of the most notable and brilliant in the history of the American trotting turf. In point of speed the season's records far surpassed those of any past year, as shown by the notable changes in the table of world's championship marks, records for the year, number of first performances, both trotters and pacers, and number and quality of performers in the juvenile divisions.

HOLD MULLANE WAS FASTEST

Former Cincinnati Pitcher Compared With Amos Rusie and Walter Johnson as Speediest Hurler.

During a recent argument between Cincinnati baseball fans the question arose as to the speediest pitcher. The name of Tony Mullane was connected with that of Amos Rusie and Walter Johnson. John B. Connolly, one of the oldest fans, declared that Tony Mullane was the speediest pitcher the game ever developed. Unquestionably, the old-timers say, Mullane had great speed in his earlier years. It would be difficult, however, to make the admirers of Rusie's time believe Mullane pitched a speedier ball than their idol.

A new thing for a cigarette to do

LOTS of cigarettes may please the taste—that's all you've ever expected from a cigarette.

But here's a cigarette—Chesterfield—that, besides pleasing the taste, does another thing, the one thing you've always wished a cigarette would do—

Chesterfields let you know you are smoking—they "SATISFY"!

And yet, they're mild! Yes, mild.

Your first few puffs of a Chesterfield will tell you that this is new enjoyment you're getting out of a cigarette—a cigarette that "satisfies" and yet is mild.

It's the blend that does it—plus, of course, the quality of the tobaccos. For never before have such costly, high-quality Imported and Domestic tobaccos been blended together in any cigarette at anywhere near the price. And, remember, it's pure, natural tobacco—no so-called "processes" or artificial fussing—just natural tobacco.

This new-to-the-world blend is a real achievement—brought about by the skill and patience of some of the world's most expert cigarette blenders. And it can't be copied.

GIRL OF FIFTEEN READY TO ELOPE

Newburgh Man Held on Serious Charge as Result of Relations With Anna May Gezza—Kept Last Abroad Central Hudson Boat

Arrested first on a complaint of abduction when tripped by the Newburgh police in company with 10-year-old Anna May Gezza, William Haver, a night watchman, faced a charge of rape in the second degree. When arraigned Tuesday before Recorder Cantline he brazenly admitted the offense and was held to await the action of the grand jury. The prisoner gave his age as 21 and said he is married. He comes from Kingston according to the Newburgh News. The only man of that name in the city directory is the well-known builder of 51 Green street who is not acquainted or related to his namesake in trouble. In Newburgh it is said the latter comes from Olive Branch.

Haver and the girl were both arrested Monday night on board the Central Hudson steamer Martin tied up for the winter at the foot of 11th street. When Mrs. Anna Gezza went home from her work that night she found her daughter missing. From the neighbors she learned the girl had been seen to leave with a man taking a suitcase with her. Finding the girl to the steamer, the mother asked Officer William Martin to accompany her there. After some search the police man located Haver and the girl hiding in different parts of the boat. They were locked up over night. The girl was later placed on probation at the request of her mother.

The case is the outcome of the wayward inclinations of a girl fit to more than a child's berth of father through domestic difficulties and finally through death. She is a daughter of William Gezza, who was found dead on February 4 from a physician. The only crime to Newburgh from Danbury's verdict was the father's death.

After going to the admissions she made to the police station first met Haver there. He said he had visited him on board the Martin at 11th street. He said he had been with Haver for a length of time and that he had been with Haver for a length of time and that he had been with Haver for a length of time.

Hopewell was frustrated.

It was evidently to be an elope. Anna May had packed most of her clothing in her mother's suitcase which was found in one of the bedrooms on board the boat. At first Officer Martin was on 11th to find anyone on board but in his search he was inside up near the bow end waiting to hide behind a curtain. The girl was discovered some distance away, hiding in a room. She was fully dressed except for a slice. Haver was without coat or vest. A charge of juvenile delinquency was entered against the girl in hold her at the police station.

Although the watchman on ship board he has himself given his age as 21, he appeared to be an older man. He said he had been with Haver for a length of time and that he had been with Haver for a length of time.

Swift Amateurs Win Again

Number 1 School gave the Swift Amateurs another game at the Holy Cross parish house Tuesday afternoon by the score of 30-10. This is the second time played between these teams and both resulted the same, a victory for the Swift Amateurs. The star player of the S. A. team Van Buren was not allowed to play until the last five minutes of play and during this time he made up for being out the rest of the game. He scored a point, a half, and a full. The game was well played by both teams. The points were made mostly by Kach and Stoughton of the S. A. The game was fast and the playwork and guarding of the Amateurs held out for 10 points. In spite of their defeat No. 1 feels confident of winning a game and has challenged the Amateurs to a game next Tuesday afternoon. The game will probably be played at Holy Cross parish house the same day.

Ludington's Rough Diamond

By DONALD CHAMBERLAIN

Edgar Ludington was born—not with a silver not with a golden but with a diamond spoon in his mouth. No one knew what his income was but all knew that it was fabulous. But Ludington was a good deal of a man for all that. He had been graduated at a college which prides itself on its democracy and had resolutely refused to be considered favorably on account of his wealth. He had also made friends of his classmates irrespective of either his social or financial standing. His father was the son of a blacksmith.

When Ludington left college he spent a year in New York associating with persons of his own social position though he himself had descended from ancestors prominent in colonial times, while most of his set were of the new school. Indeed he was about the only young man in New York who was both very rich and of his blood. He found his time principally occupied in evening parties who wanted to marry him, and during this he went west to become a rancher.

At the end of a couple of years he returned to New York to find the cold season. He was not forgotten by his associates and he found himself getting on well with the world of the latest cut, but I assure you he is a fine fellow whom I am proud to know. I've invited him to be with us, and I trust that you will all treat him as my friend.

When Cuthbert Bradshaw appeared he gave evidence of having roughed it for the greater part of his life. It was not that he was made of coarse stuff for if properly dressed he would have at least looked like a gentleman. It was that he had associated with rough persons so continuously that he had become rough himself. From his first appearance it was evident that none of the guests could stomach him. He might be a rough diamond but Ludington's friends had never been able to see the spiritual beauties of his rough diamond friends, and they did not propose to put up with Mr. Bradshaw.

The party had not been together twenty-four hours when it began to turn upon their host. The men could not use him for they had all the money they wanted the women any one of whom would have loved to add to his fortune to hers would have borne with him but not with his friend and they felt aggrieved that Ludington should have spoiled an otherwise pleasant house party by bringing Bradshaw into it. Besides they felt that their skirts were sullied by contact with his unpolished boots.

There would not have been open warfare between Ludington and his guests had he not given as much of his time to Bradshaw as to any of them. And to make matters worse, in proportion to their giving Bradshaw the cold shoulder Ludington gave him more of his time. At last Ludington became so incensed at the treatment of his favorite that he ignored them a good deal of the time to be himself with Bradshaw.

If Ludington's guests had all the money they wanted there was one thing still to be desired—a foreign title. This was beyond the hope of the men but not the women some American girls having paid millions for men from whom they were constrained to secure speedy divorces. What was the house party's surprise to see one morning under an announcement from London of the death of the Earl of Babington, that the earl's only child the title would fall to his nephew Cuthbert Bradshaw now teaching in New Mexico.

As soon as it was evident that Mr. Bradshaw was a noble lord of high degree all the women of the party about faced and sought an opportunity to do him honor. But he went about among them without taking any notice of them for the few hours he remained in the house and when he went out of it simply raised his hat politely to the group that stood on the porch—here to see him off. When he was gone the women vented their spite on Ludington for having deceived them as to Mr. Bradshaw's family connections.

Some declared that it was a frame-up on them that Bradshaw knew better than to wear his ranch clothes among them and make a boor of himself on purpose. There may be some truth in this, but he had certainly been turned loose on the world when very young and had seen some rough usage. Ludington would give his guests no satisfaction about the matter simply answering that he had concealed nothing and they were as bound to treat Bradshaw their fellow guest as well as to be as Bradshaw as when he had become the Earl of Babington.

Anyway if the Bradshaw was rough when in America he became suddenly refined in England, and it goes without saying that you can't make a person refined in a hurry.

After his friend's departure Ludington went back to his ranch and has not since been seen in New York.

MANY AID THE FASHION SHOW

While the plan to turn the season's fashion show into a benefit for the Women's Auxiliaries of the Kingston City Hospital, Beneficent Hospital and Y. M. C. A. was originated by the Van Wagenen Company, which is giving the entertainment, other merchants have generously donated goods or service toward the complete success of the affair and therefore the increased funds for the auxiliaries. The handsome furniture used in the stage setting has been loaned by the Gregory Company. The various sport goods, tennis net and racquets, golf implements, etc., etc., have come from the Charles A. Warren and Harry Carr stores. Burgeins have donated the artistic floral decorations and Muller's orchestra has donated its share of the attractive music. Another very important and valued donation is that offered in the Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing for men, from Cohen's, which will be worn by the men taking part in the fashion show.

The Evening Performance.

Mr. Gildersleeve, appreciating the "attraction" of the fashion show, has added his mile by putting on the screen on Thursday evening before the fashion show at the first performance and after the fashion show at second performance, the Paramount Picture "Out of the Wreck" with Kathryn Williams as the star. This particularly entertaining and appealing movie is running at The Strand Theater in New York city this week, and would have drawn a good house without the fashion show. With the fashion show Mr. Gildersleeve expects to have to hang out his "Standing Room Only" sign on Thursday evening.

The Ideal Kitchen.

The kitchen is the real workshop of the family. Most of the work there has to do with preparing food for the family, cleaning it up and putting it away. The old fashioned kitchens never took into account economy of steps and time, but today this is always done. There is a logical order for the arrangement of the equipment. Things that belong to each process should be together, within the reach of the worker. The icebox, cold pantry, kitchen cabinet, stove and serving table are used together and should be in a close continuous line. This is the food preparation side of the equipment. For the cleaning up of the same economy should be practiced. The sink should be near the china closet or in a butler's pantry, the trash should be straight for clearing up. Always have plenty of table room near the sink. A drain board on each side is the best plan, or at least a set of hanging shelves, a binged shelf and extra table or a wheeled table at the right. If the drain table is porcelain a rubber mat will prevent breakage.—Exchange.

Aluminum and Oxygen.

Aluminum is in many ways a wonderful substance, albeit in the natural world most of it is oxidized and turned to clay. Its avidity for oxygen is one of its most salient characteristics. It is said that one never sees the metal, directly, in air, but always and only through a veil of "superficial" oxide which forms on its free surface with marvelous rapidity. It is stated that if a fresh surface of aluminum be prepared by scraping with a knife the oxygen of the air runs in as fast as the sponge is peeled off and keeps close behind the knife blade.

If it were not for this superficial scale of oxide, which acts as a barrier to further action, the metal would burn up or degenerate in air. The large amount of heat developed by thermal, a mixture of powdered aluminum with oxygen giving substances, bears witness to the activity of the oxidizing process when completed.—Washington Star.

Tokyo's Prolific Slums.

No tourist crosses the Sumida river unless it is to visit the great amphitheater for a wrestling match or a chrysanthemum show, yet there is where, the real secret of Tokyo's future lies. It is the factory and slum sections of the city, and the population there has increased in the last decade ten times as fast as has the population in the district of Kojimachi, which surrounds the palace.

In the last generation the population of the five greatest industrial and commercial cities in Japan has increased by 314 per cent as against an increase in the whole empire of 15 per cent. The trend in Japan is cityward, and the visitor to Tokyo, seeing the streets crowded with people, does not realize that in the suburbs the growth in population has run from 250 to 500 per cent in the last decade.—Christian Herald.

Argentina's Military System.

Every native or naturalized citizen of Argentina, at home or abroad, on reaching the age of eighteen years must be enrolled. The federal executive power takes charge of this national enrollment, which serves at once as a registration of voters and national defenders. A given individual, if at home, is enrolled in one of the five military districts into which the fourteen states and ten territories of Argentina are divided. If he resides abroad he is enrolled in his consulate. For the government follows him with precision wherever he may wander. With the exception of these consular registrations abroad the general enrollment is entirely in charge of the military authorities, who are counted upon to get more thorough results than a civil census provides.—World's Work.

SATURDAY, MARCH 17

A Brilliant Event That Will Arouse Interest in Fashionable Circles

Beauty competes with beauty in this Grand Spring Opening Exhibit of Marvelous Beauty in millinery. There is variety, charm and novelty in an unending succession of versions. Every preference, every purse is provided for. Here are new Hats that cost little and Hats that cost more—Hats of simplicity and creations of magnificence—all observing the latest decrees of Dame Fashion.

Those women and misses who have viewed our advance showings frankly expressed their admiration for our conceptions, quick and ready buying being a further evidence of their appreciation.

But our Opening Display surpasses all similar exhibits made in Kingston. We feel that you will want to see the new Hats, if we can only persuade you to believe that they are the prettiest we have ever presented—that the collection is the largest, and that the PRICES ARE THE LOWEST IN KINGSTON for equal qualities.

All the New Fashionable Straws and Satin Combinations

All the New Shades, such as Chartreuse, Gold, Cherry, Red, Navy, Dark Brown, and Others for Sports and Dress Wear

Are here in multitudinous array—Little Hats, Big Hats, Hats with simple trimmings and Hats with elaborate trimmings—all new and fascinatingly pretty. We have planned with elaborate care, presenting besides clever original creations and adaptations from our own workrooms, the best copies of the greatest designers of Europe and America.

You are Cordially Invited to Attend Our Opening, Friday and Saturday May We Expect to See You Present?

Self Training Is Best, Says Armour.

In the American Magazine is an article by J. O. Armour entitled "Armour Men Who Got Ahead—and Why." In which Mr. Armour gives his opinion of the qualifications that make for business success.

"One of the truest axioms I know," he says, "is the business saying that the best trained man is the self trained man." It is my belief that no man developed by a formula in a business organization can ever reach the power of one who is put on his own responsibility, knowing that his advancement depends on his own brains, foresight and application.

"By this I do not mean that a business leader should let his men go along blindly. He must always give something of himself. He must teach them the overhead and crawl strokes where they know only the breast stroke before. But in any office organization the man who has never had to stand squarely on his own feet is never in a position to march ahead."

Work of a Microscope.

One of the newest of astronomical instruments is the blink microscope. The principle involved is similar to that of the moving picture machine. In the latter the film used consists of a series of pictures, each a little different from its predecessor. If these are presented in rapid succession the series is fused into one picture in which the succeeding differences appear as motion. The blink microscope enables one to compare a photograph of a portion of the heavens with another of the same region taken several years later.

An ingenious contrivance brings first one then the other plate into view in rapid succession. If in the interval between two exposures a star in the region has changed its position appreciably it will appear to move and can be detected at once. Formerly it was necessary to measure carefully the positions of all the stars on both plates in order to detect those with large proper motions. Such stars are sometimes called "runaway" stars.

Complaint of the Stupid.

It is only stupid people who complain that they are misunderstood. If they were not stupid they would know that there is absolutely no such thing as being misunderstood, and therefore that there is nothing whatsoever to be gained by complaining about it. Wise people who want to be understood do not spend their time complaining, but in perfecting some means of expressing themselves by which they may reveal to the world about them some slight remnant, at least, of their souls or their minds or their ideas or their discoveries or their eccentricities or whatever it is they want to make known.

When you complain about not being understood the only thing you make clear is that you are a complainer.—Puck.

Coney Mentioned in the Bible.

There are several allusions in the Bible to the coney. The thirtieth chapter, twenty-sixth verse of Proverbs says "The coney are but a feeble folk, yet they make their house in the rocks." Conies are yet found on the Lebanon and in the Jordan and Dead Sea valleys. The coney is about the size of the domestic cat, has long hair, a short tail, round ears and chews the cud.

Uncle Eben.

"A man dat minds his own business," said Uncle Eben. "Is so unusual dat he's liable to find mo' people buttin' in on him dan a regular mixer."

Metal Long in Use.

Tin was known to the Hebrew metal workers as an alloy of other metals as early as the time of Moses. There was no tin in Palestine. Their tin in the time of David was obtained from Tyre and Tyre was supplied by the ships that traded with Tarshish. This tin came from Spain, but doubtless the greater quantity came from the tin districts of Britania.

Uncle Eben.

"Pretty much de only admiration some folks shows foh de trash," said Uncle Eben. "Is braggin' 'bout George Washin'g'n."

The action brought by the heirs of George against the State of New York was continued at the opening of court this morning. The morning was taken up by a number of witnesses called by the plaintiff and testified as to the amount of water which they had seen on the land in the neighborhood of the George estate. The evidence of the witnesses was taken in the presence of the jury and the judge. The evidence of the witnesses was taken in the presence of the jury and the judge.

A this point Mr. Van Hatten called a witness who testified that he had seen water on the land in the neighborhood of the George estate. The evidence of the witnesses was taken in the presence of the jury and the judge.

What kind of a smile do you mean asked Justice Ridd and a general smile passed around the court room. During the remainder of the time Mr. Harris remained on the stand he continued to wear the same expression. The judge then informed him that he need not remain on the stand any longer.
